With Friends Like These

This Sunday, we begin a two-week journey through the Book of Job—the grand finale of Old Testament wisdom literature. Often misunderstood, Job wrestles with one of life’s deepest questions: Is God just? In the face of devastating loss, Job’s story challenges simplistic answers and invites us to consider what true comfort looks like. Join us as we explore how presence, not platitudes, can be the most powerful gift we offer to those who suffer. Come ready to reflect, wrestle, and be present.

I. Background

- Job is set most likely in the time of the _____.
- Job is NOT an _____.
- It takes place in the land of _____.
 - We have no idea where that might be.
- Why no details?
 - It seems the author does not want us _____.

II. The _____.

- “The _____” just means “_____.”
- The Satan’s Challenge:
 - Job doesn’t _____, he loves your _____.

III. The _____.

- The friends come and “_____”
 - A practice of _____ and _____.

IV. The _____.

- Each represents _____.
- Don’t _____, of which you _____.

Please fill out an attendance card and pass it to the end of the aisle.

Con Amigos Como Estos

Este domingo comenzamos un recorrido de dos semanas por el Libro de Job, la gran final de la literatura sapiencial del Antiguo Testamento. A menudo malinterpretado, Job se debate con una de las preguntas más profundas de la vida: ¿Es Dios justo? Ante una pérdida devastadora, la historia de Job desafía las respuestas simplistas y nos invita a reflexionar sobre cuál es el verdadero consuelo. Acompáñenos a explorar cómo la presencia, y no los tópicos, puede ser el regalo más poderoso que ofrecemos a quienes sufren. Ven preparado para reflexionar, luchar y estar presente.

SYMPATHY

Condolences to Lee Camacho on the loss of his wife and our beloved sister in Christ, Alberta Camacho, who passed on November 4, 2025. Services were held at our building yesterday. Please continue to keep Lee, Denise, Janice, and all their family, friends, and loved ones in your prayers as they navigate this loss.
