

Jesus demonstrated
His _____ over creation by supernaturally
turning water
into _____ inspiring His disciples to _____ themselves to Him.

How should this demonstration of power
encourage our trust in Jesus?

During Passover, Jesus
expressed
His authority over the Jewish
_____ and authority
over _____ itself.

What can we learn through Jesus' aggressive actions on the Temple grounds about who He is and what He cares about?

Many people began to _____ their lives to Jesus as they witnessed what He was _____ and _____,
even as they themselves
were found to be
_____.

What is it about the things Jesus said and did that has caused you to entrust yourself to Him?

At the beginning of Jesus' public ministry, He performed a number of supernatural signs that revealed the truth about who He was. At the wedding in Cana, He revealed Himself as Lord over all creation, and at the Temple, He demonstrated He was Lord over all true worship. The disciples rightly responded to these revelations by deepening their faith, trusting in Him more completely.

Our responsibility 2,000 years later is to respond to the complete and sufficient revelation of Christ, not by demanding further tests or proofs, but by resting fully in who Jesus has already proven Himself to be—the eternal Word made flesh, entirely worthy of our loyalty and our lives. As we do so, we will experience John's promise of "life in His name" (John 20:31).