DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. In The Will of God as a Way of Life, Jerry Sittser says, "God is thus surprisingly flexible about the future because He is supremely inflexible in the present. You are free to marry any number of people, just as you are free to pursue any number of careers. But you are not free to put anything before or above God. God must be first and foremost in everything. Once we seek first God's kingdom and entrust our lives wholly to Him, the world suddenly becomes full of possibilities." How does the idea that God is "inflexible in the present," requiring Him to be first, actually create more freedom and flexibility for your future choices?
2. When discussing Isaiah 30:21, Pastor Jake said, "Where you walk with God leads to His will for you." How does walking with God change the way you view the possibilities in your life?
3. Read Matthew 6:31–33 aloud. As adults, our responsibilities—bills, careers, health, family, and more—are real and necessary. How do you distinguish between responsible planning and the kind of worry Jesus warns against?
4. Romans 12:1–3 talks about offering our bodies as a living sacrifice. What is one area of your life where you struggle to let go of your own agenda and make room for God's direction?
5. Read Psalms 37:4 aloud. Pastor Jake spoke about the rarity of adult delight compared to the delight of children. What can make our delight in God fragile, and how can we cultivate a stronger delight in Him?

This week, remember: Where you walk with God leads to His will for you. Trust Him with your daily obligations, protect your delight in Him, and remember that the future belongs to Him—which means you are free to walk in His peace.
