

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

DON'T FORGET HOW FAR YOU'VE COME

KEY POINTS

- Hope Doesn't Drift — It Holds Fast. True biblical hope is unswerving, not because life is easy, but because God is faithful. When we forget what God has done, we drift. When we remember, we stand firm.
- Remembering Is a Spiritual Discipline. The strength of your faith depends on what you refuse to forget. Looking back isn't about returning—it's about remembering how far God has already brought you.
- Your Progress Is Proof of God's Faithfulness. Abraham's journey—from Ur to the promise—shows that faith isn't perfection, it's progress. Even through fear, failure, and testing, God remained faithful.
- Altars Mark the Moments Where God Moves. Abraham built altars to mark moments of God's presence, promise, reassurance, and provision. Events mark what we do; altars mark what God does. If you don't mark the moments, you'll only see how far you still have to go.
- Forgetting Is the Enemy's Strategy — Mark the Moments. When we forget God's faithfulness, we lose confidence in where He's leading us next. Marking the moments protects us from drifting, restores courage, and fuels unswerving hope for the future.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Where have you seen the clearest evidence of God's faithfulness in your life so far? What "cone" or season stands out as proof that God has carried you?
2. What's the difference between remembering your past and returning to it? How can remembering strengthen your faith without pulling you backward?
3. Which moment in your faith journey are you most tempted to forget—and why? How might forgetting that moment cause you to drift rather than hold unswervingly to hope?
4. What would it look like for you to "mark the moment" this season? Are there practical ways you could build an altar—write it down, tell someone, celebrate, or pause and thank God?
5. Where might God be testing or stretching your faith right now? How could taking an inventory of God's past faithfulness give you confidence to trust Him with what's next?
