A New Purpose

by Tim Kontonasakis-Hall

I was raised Catholic and always knew about Jesus and the Bible, but I began to drift away from the church when I became an adult after experiencing significant loss in my life. I got divorced, then my father passed away, followed by my ex-spouse and grandmother. It was devastating. I began to question if God existed. I attempted to self-manage my life, which only created poor decisions and trust issues in my relationships. I began doubting Jesus as I began to question God and religion.

In February of 2006, my girlfriend took me to a Jars of Clay concert. As I listened to the lyrics of the songs and the artists explained how the songs were written and why, God began to show me that He was there for everyone and everyone's experiences were unique...
