

Patience Prize Game

Materials

- ☐ Plastic wrap
- ☐ One bag of treats for students to share

Instructions

Before class, begin by wrapping the treat bag in two layers of plastic wrap and cutting the wrap. Wrap another layer in the opposite direction around the first two layers and cut. Continue wrapping and cutting in opposite directions until you have enough layers for each student to unwrap at least one. You may want to fold the edge over as you layer each piece of plastic wrap so students can find the edges more easily.

Have students sit in a circle on the floor or at tables. Explain that there is a prize in the middle of this ball of plastic wrap. As they pass it around the circle, each student will take a turn carefully pulling off one layer of wrap. If they try to go too fast, it could tangle the plastic and make it more difficult to get the wrap off, so they must be patient and work carefully. When the last layer is unwrapped, have the students share the treats as you lead the Suggested Discussion.

Suggested Discussion

Today we talked about the long time David had to wait to become king of Israel. There may have been times when he wondered if he would ever be king. But he trusted God and knew God was faithful to keep his promises.

- ❓ While we unwrapped our ball of plastic wrap, how many of you wondered if you would ever get to the end? Show of hands.
- ❓ Did any of you wonder if there really was a prize inside? Allow discussion.

This was an exercise in patience. There wasn't much you could do except keep on pulling off the plastic layers one by one. It's easy to get impatient and want to hurry up, especially when we're waiting for God to do something. We might try to jump ahead with our own ideas just to make something happen, but that's not the best way. God wants us to slow down and trust him. David could have sinned many times by doing things his own way, but he did the right thing by waiting patiently and trusting God.
