Health Corner

Mental Health in the Black Community

Breaking the stigma surrounding mental health within our community is crucial for fostering well-being, resilience and accessing the necessary support.

Historically, mental health issues have often been minimized or ignored due to cultural norms and mistrust of medical institutions.

Seeking help from mental health professionals who share similar cultural backgrounds or have specialized training in cultural competence can also help break down barriers to effective care.

Support groups, both online and in-person, create safe spaces for sharing experiences and coping strategies.

Faith-based initiatives can also bridge the gap between spiritual well-being and mental health care. Encouraging self-care practices and stress management techniques,

Empowering our community is a transformative step toward breaking the stigma and enhancing collective mental well-being.

Know your brain health

Be proactive in healthy aging with a free community screening program

Do you question whether your brain is working normally for your age?

It is common to experience changes in memory and thinking as we age. While some changes with aging are normal, others may be symptoms that could indicate an underlying condition or something serious. To assess whether further consultation with a medical provider is necessary, Banner Sun Health Research Institute offers a free Brain Health Check-In.

Paper and pencil assessments for people 55 years and older are provided by the Neuropsychology team at our Center for Healthy Aging, and last about one hour.

You can expect to complete short questionnaires and brief memory and thinking tests. Then you will have a chance to review your brain health risk status, ask questions, and receive resources for maintaining brain health. Please note: Brain scans and blood work are not provided.
