DAY 1: GOD SEES WHAT OTHERS OVERLOOK

Scripture Reading: Luke 21:1-4 — Jesus passes through Jericho, notices Zacchaeus in the sycamore tree, and calls him by name.

Devotional:
In a crowd of wealthy givers, Jesus fixed his eyes on one woman whom others likely ignored. She brought what most would consider insignificant, and yet Jesus declared her gift the greatest of all. This reminds us that God does not evaluate our lives the way the world does. He does not measure worth by volume, visibility, or applause. He looks past the surface and reads the posture of the heart. Today, rest in the truth that God sees you fully, knows you completely, and values what you offer from a sincere heart.

Personal Reflection:
What areas of your life do you feel are too small or insignificant to matter to God? How does this passage challenge that belief?

Practical Application:
Today, offer God something intentional and personal in worship, whether that is a moment of prayer, an act of service, or a quiet surrender of something you have been holding back.

DAY 2: WHERE YOUR TREASURE IS

Scripture Reading: Matthew 6:19-21, 24

Devotional:
Jesus teaches that our treasure and our heart travel together. Whatever we consistently invest in, protect, and prioritize reveals what we truly value. This is not merely a lesson about money. It is a diagnostic tool for the soul. When we give toward the work of God's kingdom, we are making a declaration that what matters to God matters to us. The widow in Luke 21 did not simply drop coins into a box. She declared with her hands what her heart already believed. Examine today where your greatest investments of time, attention, and resources are truly going.

Personal Reflection:
If someone examined your schedule and your spending over the past month without any explanation from you, what would they conclude you treasure most?

Practical Application:
Make a simple list of your top three priorities based on where you actually spend your time and money. Then ask God honestly whether those priorities reflect a heart aligned with his kingdom.

DAY 3: THE SACRIFICE THAT COSTS SOMETHING

Scripture Reading: 2 Samuel 24:18-24; Romans 12:1

Devotional:
David refused to offer God something that cost him nothing. He understood that true worship involves genuine sacrifice. The apostle Paul echoes this in Romans 12:1, urging believers to present their bodies as living sacrifices, which he describes as their true and proper worship. Sacrifice, by its very nature, requires giving something up. It means releasing comfort, convenience, or security in order to honor God. The widow gave all she had to live on, and in doing so she demonstrated that her dependence was not on her coins but on her God. Real faith always costs something.

Personal Reflection:
When was the last time your obedience to God genuinely cost you something? What did that sacrifice reveal about the condition of your faith?

Practical Application:
Identify one area where you have been giving God only what is easy or convenient. Ask him to give you the courage and faith to move toward a more sacrificial posture in that area this week.

DAY 4: TRUSTING GOD WITH WHAT YOU RELEASE

Scripture Reading: Philippians 4:15-19; John 6:1-13

Devotional:
A young boy handed Jesus a small lunch. Jesus blessed it, broke it, and fed thousands. What was insufficient in the boy's hands became more than enough in the hands of Christ. This is the principle behind sacrificial giving. When we release what we have to God, we are not simply emptying our hands. We are trusting him to multiply, direct, and use it for purposes far greater than we could manage on our own. Philippians 4:19 assures us that God supplies every need according to his riches, not ours. What you release to God never leaves your story. It simply enters a greater one.

Personal Reflection:
Is there something you have been holding tightly because you are afraid that releasing it will leave you without enough? What would it look like to trust God with that specific thing?

Practical Application:
Practice an act of intentional release today. Give something, serve someone, or surrender a worry to God in prayer, and consciously remind yourself that what is in God's hands is never wasted.

DAY 5: POVERTY OF SELF, RICHNESS OF FAITH

Scripture Reading: 2 Corinthians 9:6-8; Malachi 3:10

Devotional:
The widow had very little in her hand but demonstrated extraordinary richness in her faith. Her physical poverty became a portrait of complete spiritual dependence on God. Paul writes in 2 Corinthians 9 that generous giving flows from a heart that has been touched by God's grace, and that God loves a cheerful giver, one who gives not under compulsion but from genuine gratitude. Malachi 3:10 presents God's challenge to trust him fully and watch what he does in return. The widow did not give to get. She gave because she already believed God was enough. That is the heart posture the gospel calls every believer to pursue.

Personal Reflection:
Do you give to God out of obligation, routine, or genuine gratitude? What would it mean for your giving, your serving, and your worship to flow from a place of true thankfulness for what God has already done?

Practical Application:
Close this five-day journey by writing a brief prayer of gratitude to God. Name specific ways he has provided for you, protected you, and been faithful to you. Let that gratitude become the foundation from which your worship and generosity flow in the days ahead.
