“For the Son of Man has come to seek and to save the lost.” - Luke 19:10

Loving the Lost: Robert was born to the first known believers in his people group. They fled persecution in their mountain village and settled in a nearby city, where Robert grew up. Despite being raised in a nearby city, where Robert grew up. Despite being raised by Christians, Robert didn't follow Jesus. As a young man, many of his friends and family were persecuted and martyred for their faith. Robert joined a radical militia to avenge their deaths. During a firefight, he promised to follow Christ if spared. He kept this promise after miraculously escaping. Recently, Robert joined a Project 3,000 missionary explorer in the mountain villages where his people live. He met his distant relatives and helped lead five men to faith, translating the gospel into their language. The same gospel that transformed his parents' lives and his life continues transforming others today. Now, his people are no longer considered unreached.
