Biden Losing the Balance of Power as Key Middle Eastern Ally Shifts Toward Iran: Report³

- The western journal reports Saudi Arabia is looking to pause the normalization of relations with Israel, and looking to engage with Iran, a long-time geopolitical adversary.
- Reuters reported Thursday the Saudi crown prince took his first phone call with the Iranian president to discuss the ongoing conflict with Israel.
- The Saudi government simply said after the call that it stood in “opposition to any form of civilian targeting and the loss of innocent lives” and emphasized the Saudis’ “unwavering stance in standing up for the Palestinian cause.”
- It was revealed by a wire service that there is talk that if the relationship resumes, the priority would be on concessions from Saudi Arabia on behalf of the Palestinian authority.
