Key Talking Points:

- Sheriff Dar Leaf just announced an investigation into the Michigan 2020 election. He claims to have possession of sensitive documents tied to dominion employees and high-profile figures and accuses the Muskegon County prosecutor of attempting to usurp his ongoing investigation.
- The gateway pundit reports the Barry County sheriff says he began his investigation around November 3rd of 2020 after receiving information about election fraud.
- His evidence implicates not just dominion voting system officials but also Sec. of State Jocelyn Benson, Attorney General Dana Nessel, computer scientist J. Alex Halderman, and others in potential misconduct.

- On Thursday, Sheriff Leaf received a subpoena from the office of Muskegon County prosecutor D.J. Hilson, ordering him to present his law enforcement files at the Oakland County courthouse with less than 24 hours’ notice.
- Leaf has expressed reluctance to comply fully with the subpoena, citing concerns over compromising his department’s ongoing investigation.
- Sheriff leaf asserts that his department possesses sensitive documents, including email communications that suggest dominion employees directed Serbian foreign nationals to remotely access Michigan’s election system before the certification of the 2020 election results.
- These documents include emails that allegedly corroborate evidence contained in expert reports of foreign access to Michigan election equipment.
- In addition to the allegations against dominion, sheriff leaf’s files reportedly contain communications from J. Alex Halderman, a university of Michigan professor of computer science and engineering, who offered assistance to dominion employees implicated in the investigation.
- Halderman is accused of failing to disclose significant security breaches in Michigan’s election equipment and of concealing evidence pertinent to the case.
- Recall that Halderman was the same person who made headlines recently for being able to hack a dominion voting machine to change the tabulation in front of U.S. District Judge Amy Totenberg in the courtroom using only a pen to change vote totals.
- Also, sheriff leaf disclosed that his office and central dispatch experienced a network outage on the day of the subpoena, leading to suspicions of an attempt to obstruct the investigation.

Article: Netanyahu Quotes Bible in Face of New Biden Pressure for Ceasefire, Two-State Solution

Article Link: <https://www2.cbn.com/news/israel/netanyahu-quotes-bible-face-new-biden-pressure-ceasefire-two-state-solution>

Key Talking Points:

- In other international news, prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu quotes the bible in the face of new Biden pressure for a cease fire and two state solution.
- CBN news reports the U.S. and Israel stand at a diplomatic and military crossroads.

- Israel says it needs to finish the war against Hamas in the key Gazan city of Rafah, yet the U.S. is threatening that Israel won't be able to use American weapons if Israel launches its military campaign against the Hamas stronghold.

Whoever tells us not to operate in Rafah is telling us to lose the war – and that will not happen. There is international pressure, and it is increasing. But it is precisely when the international pressure increases that we must close ranks among ourselves. We must stand together against the attempts to stop the war. This is what the psalmist says in psalm 144: 1: 'who trains my hands for war, my fingers for battle.' We are learning the lessons of fighting, and we are planning – with due consideration – the continuation of the war. In the future, we will learn all the lessons of October 7th. We will do so openly and fully. But today we have a clear goal: achieving total victory in the war."
- God bless Israel and also please continue to keep the leaders in this conflict, the remaining hostages, and the IDF in your prayers.
