

Application & Conclusion:

The person of Jesus gives us the hope that we will not be left to our own demise, but we will one day be embraced in the loving presence of God. We are not left to a life of pain, disappointment, and death. Because of Jesus, there is a better story we live. There is a new reality, despite what we may see.

The redefined reality of Jesus lifts us out of the darkness into hope. If we follow in His embodied way, and abide by His embodied truth, then we will rest in His embodied life – a life of beauty and peace, centered in the presence of God.

The presence of God is our eternal home where we will have no more sin, sickness, or sorrow. That feels like home. That's where we rest. That's where we are safe. That's where we long to be, somehow, some way.

Who would mind the journey, when the road leads home?
