

Rest in His Nearness

January 4, 2026

Exodus 33:14

The Lord replied, I will personally go with you, and I will give you rest—everything will be fine for you.

Life can get loud quickly with deadlines, decisions, expectations, with pressure coming from every direction. Moses knew what that felt like. He was leading people through a wilderness wrestling with uncertainty on the outside and on the inside. While in the middle of all that stress, God didn't give Moses a plan first, He gave him His presence.

God offered HIMSELF

When God says, "I will personally go with you," He's showing us something essential: His presence isn't a bonus to your life, it's the source of your peace. Moses didn't beg for an easier path; he wanted God close. And that nearness became his rest, his assurance, and his confidence.

Rest isn't the absence of problems; it's assurance that God is walking with you through them.

Maybe you need that reminder today. You're not carrying your responsibilities, relationships, or decisions alone. God's promise is personal and steady: "I'm with you, and I will give you rest."

Pause and breathe. Let His presence settle the anxiety and lift what's too heavy for you. You don't need everything to be perfect for everything to be okay, you only need Him near.

Psalm 46:10

"Be still, and know that I am God."

God isn't asking you to figure everything out, He's asking you to trust His nearness.

Prayer:

Lord, thank You for being with me. Help me rest in Your presence today. Be my peace, my strength, and my guide. In Jesus' name

Ps. Tracy
