Note from the

1 Corinthians 16:13 Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.

- Throughout scripture, a common theme exists: be courageous. What does bravery look like to you?
- Maybe it's a strong face in the middle of a bad diagnosis. Or perhaps it is the men and women who jump into the midst of burning buildings and war zones to find a save the innocent.
- What if bravery was having the faith to push through another hard day?
- The Apostle Paul is writing to encourage these young believers to stand strong in the midst of difficult circumstances.
- Not only was the city they lived in seeking to prevent them from gathering in the name of Jesus, but there was also fighting breaking out in the middle of their own gatherings.
- The young church was full of different people who had various opinions on how they should meet, their worship, and what living a godly life truly looked like. Sounds familiar, right?
- Instead of scolding the believers in Corinth, Paul encouraged each of them to remember why they were gathering in the first place – Jesus.
- The fact that Jesus Himself experienced various trials and tribulations of His life and ministry reminds us that we can stand courageously in our own trials.
- Why? Because nothing can happen to us that Jesus Himself does not know, and has not already overcome!
