

The Next Life: Q & R Sunday

April 7, 2019

On Judgment Day, are Christians judged based on what we've done, or are we saved through faith in Christ? Seems like there's a contradiction here.

What about the people who died before Jesus came? Are any of them in heaven? If so, how?

If a Christian commits suicide, will they still go to heaven?

If you become a Christian, but later in life you reject Jesus, are you still saved/going to heaven?

Can I go to heaven if my body is cremated?

What is the purpose of there being rewards in heaven?

Will I be myself in heaven? Will I still have the relationships I have now?

The Next Life: Q & R Sunday

April 7, 2019

On Judgment Day, are Christians judged based on what we've done, or are we saved through faith in Christ? Seems like there's a contradiction here.

What about the people who died before Jesus came? Are any of them in heaven? If so, how?

If a Christian commits suicide, will they still go to heaven?

If you become a Christian, but later in life you reject Jesus, are you still saved/going to heaven?

Can I go to heaven if my body is cremated?

What is the purpose of there being rewards in heaven?

Will I be myself in heaven? Will I still have the relationships I have now?

DISCUSSION WEEK!

This week, we encourage your group to engage in your own discussion about the next life. You can jump off of the questions that were brought up on Sunday, or bring up your own questions.

As you converse, remember these guidelines:

- a) Give everyone a chance to speak, voice their opinion, or ask a question
- b) Be courteous! If you disagree, share that disagreement with kindness. We want small groups to be safe places to share, not places we can't speak up because we might be wrong.
- c) We all have different life experiences, and we are all at different places in our relationship with God. Those with greater knowledge and those who are further along on their journey of faith should teach others, but those with less knowledge or experience also have a valuable voice, and the church is poorer if they are not listened to.
- d) We are united by our love for Jesus, His salvation, and the Holy Spirit inside of us.

DISCUSSION WEEK!

This week, we encourage your group to engage in your own discussion about the next life. You can jump off of the questions that were brought up on Sunday, or bring up your own questions.

As you converse, remember these guidelines:

- a) Give everyone a chance to speak, voice their opinion, or ask a question
- b) Be courteous! If you disagree, share that disagreement with kindness. We want small groups to be safe places to share, not places we can't speak up because we might be wrong.
- c) We all have different life experiences, and we are all at different places in our relationship with God. Those with greater knowledge and those who are further along on their journey of faith should teach others, but those with less knowledge or experience also have a valuable voice, and the church is poorer if they are not listened to.
- d) We are united by our love for Jesus, His salvation, and the Holy Spirit inside of us.