

Prayer from Morgan Snyder, as quoted by Greg Lindsey

Jesus, I am struck afresh that the real work you are doing is restoring the true me. Father I want to be curious about what you set in my heart that has gone underground, that is hidden, that is self-protected out of valid harm. You say in the Scriptures that here in this river, you will turn our old life into a kingdom life, that you will ignite a life of fire within us through the Holy Spirit, and that you will change and transform us from the inside out, over time, steadily, piece by piece, and part by part. You will cleanse the house, making a sweep of our lives. That you will give us the courage to become more and more aware of the false, and that you would become more of the safe place in order that we can dismantle the false and restore the true self.

God, you are my refuge and safe place. I have nothing to fear in being found. You rescue me from hidden traps. Because you are my refuge, I have nothing to fear. Because you provide what I need, I find myself without lack. because in you, the true me is more than enough and is without lack. I can come in a soul safe space to be exposed. To become aware of my true self. Dismantle the false, and restore everything that you meant when you meant me. I trust you, God, and I trust that, because I am your child, I am on time today. And I trust that you are with me, working right where I am, right in this place of who I have become. Fill me, God, with your light and with your life. Shine your light, be my life, expose what you want to expose. I invite you into my true self, to excavate, to hear, and to show me what's in the way. In Jesus' name, Amen.

Prayer from Morgan Snyder, as quoted by Greg Lindsey

Jesus, I am struck afresh that the real work you are doing is restoring the true me. Father I want to be curious about what you set in my heart that has gone underground, that is hidden, that is self-protected out of valid harm. You say in the Scriptures that here in this river, you will turn our old life into a kingdom life, that you will ignite a life of fire within us through the Holy Spirit, and that you will change and transform us from the inside out, over time, steadily, piece by piece, and part by part. You will cleanse the house, making a sweep of our lives. That you will give us the courage to become more and more aware of the false, and that you would become more of the safe place in order that we can dismantle the false and restore the true self.

God, you are my refuge and safe place. I have nothing to fear in being found. You rescue me from hidden traps. Because you are my refuge, I have nothing to fear. Because you provide what I need, I find myself without lack. because in you, the true me is more than enough and is without lack. I can come in a soul safe space to be exposed. To become aware of my true self. Dismantle the false, and restore everything that you meant when you meant me. I trust you, God, and I trust that, because I am your child, I am on time today. And I trust that you are with me, working right where I am, right in this place of who I have become. Fill me, God, with your light and with your life. Shine your light, be my life, expose what you want to expose. I invite you into my true self, to excavate, to hear, and to show me what's in the way. In Jesus' name, Amen.