“Quality time does not mean that we have to spend our together moments gazing into each other’s eyes. It means that we are doing something together and that we are giving our full attention to the other person.”
— Gary Chapman, The Five Love Languages

1. How and to whom did you practice the love language Words of Affirmation?
2. What aspect of the message on the love language Quality Time (i.e. giving someone your undivided presence) impacted you the most?
3. Share an example of when someone giving you quality time was meaningful for you.
4. What is the difference between falling in love and growing in love?
5. How do you give priority to the most important relationships in your life?
