

ROOTS: THE BACKSTORY

OVERVIEW:

It's been said that the New Testament is a commentary on the Old Testament. If that's the case, having a basic knowledge of the Old Testament historical narratives and knowing what people in and around Jesus' time thought about those stories matters. They provide a beautiful context that will help the New Testament come to life in a powerful way. We hope that through this series we explore the stories in a way the ancients would have heard them so that they impact our lives as they would have impacted the lives in Jesus' day.

LEARNING AND GROWING - FROM ROWS TO CIRCLES:

At North Summit, we believe that we learn in rows on Sunday mornings and that we grow in circles - in small relational environments with other people - becoming more like Jesus. Throughout this series, we highly encourage each person to identify a few people to get together with each week and make the commitment to have conversations around the Sunday teaching and to pray together. This isn't the time to re-teach the sermon but rather to facilitate conversation, knowing that we grow when we are in relationship with one another. We can't do this alone; we were created to do this with others.

CREATING AN ENVIRONMENT FOR REAL RELATIONSHIPS:

Real relationships involve trust, honesty, transparency, and vulnerability between people. For that to happen in a group setting, everyone must know there is safety and trust. Below are some guidelines that we highly recommend sharing and restating at the start of each group time to create a space to be open, vulnerable, and honest.

Group Guidelines:

- Confidentiality: What is said here stays here.
- Silence is okay: Sometimes people need more time to process a question before responding. Embrace the awkward silence as a tool for a better response.
- No fixing: We aren't here to solve problems or counsel anyone but rather to listen and share.
- No rescuing: Responses can be uncomfortable, to the point that we want to interject to make it stop. Fight against the urge to interject, knowing the Holy Spirit might be working on the person.
- No cross talk: Only one person should be talking at a time.
- Be self-aware: Don't talk too much; don't talk too little. Also, be aware of your body language. Make sure you are appropriately engaged.
- Listen: Listen with your eyes, ears, and appropriate body language. Listen carefully.
- Use "I" statements: Answer for yourself, not for someone else.

FACILITATING YOUR GROUP:

As the Group Facilitator, your role will be to facilitate the group's conversation by asking questions as well as to keep the group within the guidelines that produce a healthy environment for sharing. As the Group Facilitator, be sure to:

- Share and uphold the Group Guidelines.
- Be vulnerable and transparent.
- Facilitate the conversation and keep it going (don't lecture or re-teach).
- Be friendly.
- Ask clarifying follow-up questions.
- Listen intently.
