A Prayer for People Who Have Problems I May Not Know Anything About

Martha's Musings

After watching several commercials on TV, I reached a conclusion. Humans must have a "need" for all sorts of things. Conversely, God does not need anything. Nothing in those commercials was of any interest to God Almighty. Which is one reason that I find commercials interesting. I play mahjong online, and more than one brand begins with a picture of Christ and the heading "God wants you to play this game." Really? God must be having a slow day, if He indeed is using His many talents to choose a particular mahjong game for a particular person. Which I sincerely doubt. I am outraged that any company would use a supposed likeness of Our Lord to sell a product – the ultimate in tackiness. But as I mentioned before, humans just love - or "need" – all kinds of things. Many companies, in America and everywhere else, pander to this condition. The amount of "stuff" that we all apparently want is appalling. And since most of us do not have the space to store all this stuff, the sales industry has responded enthusiastically. Storage units, in your home or down the road, are a big industry. They range in size from units large enough to store your motorcycle or RV, to tiny, decorated boxes that you proudly display, but which only hold one pair of earrings. If humanity wants it, industry will provide it. But the things that mankind really needs cannot be bought. No store, online or brick and mortar, sells faith, hope, kindness, or peace of mind. Those very real things only come from God - and are priceless, and available to any believer who takes the time to ask for them. Our God is generous – He will not run out of His gifts, they are not on "backorder", and there are never any shipping fees. Go ahead – take the plunge. Remember, every good and perfect gift comes from above. James 1:17. (Not from Amazon!)

Blessings,
