- The message suggests that becoming more like Jesus may have less to do with being naturally “gifted” and more to do with practice. Do you agree? Why or why not?
- What stands out to you most about Priscilla and Aquila? How did they use ordinary things—their work, home, relationships, and opportunities—for God’s purposes?
- Where are you most tempted to think, “I’m just not good at that,” when it comes to following Jesus or helping others experience Him? What might change if you saw it as something you could grow in through practice?
- Think about the everyday relationships already in your life—family, friends, coworkers, neighbors, teammates, etc. Where might God already be working in one of those relationships, and how could you join Him?
- “10,000 hours in the same direction” is really about consistency over time. What is one simple practice you could begin this week that would help you become better at finding God’s purpose in everyday relationships?

Key Verse: Romans 16:3 Give my greetings to Priscilla and Aquila, my co-workers in the ministry of Christ Jesus.
