PSALM 78:1–8

THE NEXT GENERATION IS WORTH IT

Because God has entrusted the next generation to us, we must faithfully steward today's opportunities so they will know and trust Him tomorrow.

RECEIVE WHAT HAS BEEN HANDED TO US (Psalm 78:1–3)

- What responsibility did God give His people concerning the truth they had received, and what are some spiritual blessings we enjoy today because previous generations faithfully passed them on? (Deuteronomy 6:4–9; 2 Timothy 1:5)
- What does God require of those who have been entrusted with something, and why is gratitude essential to faithful stewardship? (1 Corinthians 4:1–2; James 1:17)
- What danger arises when a generation begins treating what it inherited as though it exists primarily for its own comfort and benefit? (Deuteronomy 8:10–18; Philippians 2:3–4)

STEWARD WHAT HAS BEEN ENTRUSTED TO US (Psalm 78:4–6)

- According to Psalm 78:4-6, what responsibility does the present generation have toward the generation coming behind it? (Deuteronomy 6:6–9; Psalm 145:4)
- What has God uniquely entrusted to us in this season, and what does Jesus mean when He says, "Everyone to whom much was given, of him much will be required"? (Luke 12:48; 1 Peter 4:10)
- How can God's blessings become missed opportunities when His people fail to recognize and faithfully steward what He has placed before them? (Ephesians 5:15–16; Matthew 25:14–30)

PASS ON WHAT MUST OUTLIVE US (Psalm 78:6–8)

- According to Psalm 78:6–7, what is the ultimate goal of investing in the next generation, and how should that goal shape what we prioritize today? (Psalm 78:6–7; 3 John 4)
- What happened when another generation arose that did not know the Lord or remember what He had done, and what warning does this give the Church today? (Judges 2:7–10; Deuteronomy 6:10–12)
- What are we willing to do today so another generation can know, trust, and follow Jesus tomorrow? (2 Timothy 2:1–2; Psalm 71:17–18)
