Republicans have an answer for Trump's poor debate performance

Republicans know Donald Trump didn't win Tuesday's debate. And they know who to blame: the media.

"It was three-on-one. They continued to engage in so-called fact-checking of Donald Trump. They never did that to Kamala Harris," Sen. Tom Cotton (R-Ark.) told reporters.

DeWine trusting Springfield officials who say 'no credible evidence' found in Haitian migrants eating pets

During Tuesday night's presidential debate, Trump repeated rumors of immigrants eating cats and dogs in Springfield.

Ohio AG knocks 'media' over Springfield animal hunting claims

Ohio Attorney General Dave Yost on Wednesday accused the "media" of ignoring evidence surrounding claims Springfield, Ohio residents are having their pets abducted and eaten.

Sen. JD Vance, R-Ohio, on Tuesday shared his office had received reports that household pets in Springfield, Ohio “were abducted by Haitian migrants.” The senator noted he could not verify these claims, but attributed several tragedies to the arrival of immigrants.

The Republican vice presidential nominee juxtaposed this with the Biden administration's border practices.

“Do you know what's confirmed?” he asked via X. “That a child was murdered by a Haitian migrant who had no right to be here. That local health services have been overwhelmed. That communicable diseases--like TB and HIV--have been on the rise. That local schools have struggled to keep up with newcomers who don't know English. That rents have risen so fast that many Springfield families can't afford to put a roof over their head.”

Springfield residents testified about the situation during a city commission meeting Tuesday.

Woman arrested for allegedly killing cat, eating it in front of neighbors

STARK COUNTY, Ohio (Gray News) - A 27-year-old woman was arrested by police in Ohio for allegedly killing a cat and eating the animal.

According to court records filed in Stark County, Alexia Telia Ferrell, of Canton, is charged with injuring animals, prohibitions concerning companion animals and disorderly conduct.

WARNING: Some may find these details disturbing.

Investigators with the Canton Police Department said Ferrell killed the cat by stomping on its head. She then went on to eat the cat “in a residential area in front of multiple people” at a housing complex on 13th Street SE.

Ohio is sending troopers and $2.5 million to a city that has seen an influx of Haitian migrants

The governor of Ohio will send law enforcement and millions of dollars in healthcare resources to the city of Springfield as it faces a surge in temporary Haitian migrants that has landed it in the national spotlight.

Republican Ohio Gov. Mike DeWine said Tuesday he doesn't oppose the Temporary Protected Status program under which some 15,000 Haitians have arrived in the city of about 59,000 people since 2020, but said the federal government must do more to help impacted communities.

His news conference was held just hours before the presidential debate between Vice President Kamala Harris and former Republican President Donald Trump, where the divide over immigration policy was sure to be an issue.

On Monday, Republican Ohio Attorney General Dave Yost also drew attention to the crisis when he directed his office to research legal avenues — including filing a lawsuit — to stop the federal government from sending “an unlimited number of migrants to Ohio communities.”

Animal sacrifices on the rise in Queens with chickens, pigs being tortured in ‘twisted’ rituals

Animal sacrifices are surging in Queens, with chickens, pigs and rats being tortured, mutilated or killed in “twisted” religious rituals in parkland surrounding Jamaica Bay, The Post has learned.

In a little over a month, at least nine wounded animals or carcasses have been discovered in the federally-managed Spring Creek Park in Howard Beach and the Jamaica Bay Wildlife Refuge in Broad Channel — including five live pigs with partially severed ears.

Creatures recovered from the revolting scene also include a near-dead baby rat tied up in a bag with chicken bones; a freshly-decapitated chicken head; a live hen in distress; and a dead dog with its neck snapped.

Several rescuers and a local religious leader suggested the torture was linked to a sect of Hindu devotees who worship the goddess Kali and have practiced animal sacrifice in the area surrounding Jamaica Bay for decades.

“It’s a misconstruing of what the scriptures say about conquering the animalistic values,” said Acharya Arun Gossai, who runs the Bhuvaneshwar Mandir temple in Ozone Park.

“They’ve twisted it and they’ve sacrificed an actual animal rather than sacrificing the animalistic qualities of man.”

At Philadelphia Rally Against Presidential Debate, Protesters Wave Hamas, Popular Front For The Liberation Of Palestine (PFLP) Flags, Chant: Hamas Leader Yahya Sinwar, You Make Us Proud! U.S. Is The Number One Terrorist! Kamala Harris Is A War Criminal! Banner Reads: 'Amerika Is The Head Of The Snake'

At a Philadelphia protest against the presidential debate between Kamal Harris and Donald Trump on September 10, 2024, protesters waved Hamas and PFLP flags, held a banner stating: "Amerika is the head of the snake," and chanted, "Yahya Sinwar, you make us proud!" Protesters continued to laud Hamas's Izz Al-din Al-Qassam Brigades and the Lion's Den. They added: "Resistance is justified, when people are occupied." The protest's MC led the crowd in a chant: "U.S. imperialist – number one terrorist!" Participants chanted that Vice President Kamala Harris is a "war criminal," and called for "Intifada, revolution," while making a triangle finger gesture indicating support for the Palestinian armed struggle.

In portions of the protest not included in the clip, Lion's Den statement about the November 1, 2022 Israeli elections was read out at the protests and representatives from Students for Justice in Palestine and the Philadelphia Palestine Coalition gave speeches, urging participants to boycott the elections. The protest was streamed live on Status Coup News on Facebook and YouTube.

Top Biden adviser has been employed for decades at church that gave platform to antisemites: 'Devil by nature'

VP Kamala Harris and her husband attended a church service at Shiloh Baptist Church in 2022

A top Biden White House adviser has been employed for decades as a minister at a Washington, D.C., church that has hosted several activists and religious leaders with long histories of antisemitism, including one Black activist who, during a 2002 speech, called for "Zionists" in Israel, including their babies, to be murdered.

Rev. Thomas Bowen, who is listed on Shiloh Baptist Church's website as a minister of social justice and has been employed at the church since 2002 in several leadership roles, joined the White House in February to serve as the senior adviser for the White House Office of Public Engagement, which "works at the local, state, and national levels to ensure community leaders, diverse perspectives, and new voices all have the opportunity to inform the work of the President."

Shiloh Baptist Church, a historic Black church that Vice President Kamala Harris and her husband visited on Christmas Day in 2022, is led by Reverend Doctor Wallace Charles Smith, Shiloh's senior minister and a longtime mentor of Bowen. During a sermon before Shiloh's congregation last month, Bowen called Smith his "hero," "friend," and "mentor ... to whom I owe a debt that I could never ever repay."

Election officials warn that widespread problems with the US mail system could disrupt voting tate and local election officials from across the country on Wednesday warned that problems with the nation's mail delivery system threaten to disenfranchise voters in the upcoming presidential election, telling the head of the U.S. Postal Service that it hasn't fixed persistent deficiencies.

In an alarming letter, the officials said that over the past year, including the just-concluded primary season, mailed ballots that were postmarked on time were received by local election offices days after the deadline to be counted. They also noted that properly addressed election mail was being returned to them as undeliverable, a problem that could automatically send voters to inactive status through no fault of their own, potentially creating chaos when those voters show up to cast a ballot.

The officials also said that repeated outreach to the Postal Service to resolve the issues had failed and that the widespread nature of the problems made it clear these were "not one-off mistakes or a problem with specific facilities. Instead, it demonstrates a pervasive lack of understanding and enforcement of USPS policies among its employees."

Tucker Carlson and the turning point for right-wing antisemitism

The former “Fox News” host’s platforming of Holocaust denial could blow up the GOP on the eve of the presidential election. Can Trump and J.D. Vance summon the will to condemn him?

In a more perfect or at least saner world, we could afford to ignore Tucker Carlson. The former Fox News host’s ties to former President Donald Trump make his recent foray into crackpot lunacy with a program about Holocaust denial—on his show that appears on X, the social-media platform formerly known as Twitter and owned by billionaire entrepreneur Elon Musk—something that must be addressed, especially by conservatives.

In such a world, we might also not have to worry whether X, which is, more than ever, the principal venue for free political discourse, might come under attack from the government. The goal of X’s critics is to return to the situation that existed before Musk bought it in 2022 when it was a place where, at the behest of the federal government, dissent from current liberal orthodoxy could be censored.

In this context, the questions to ask about Carlson are not confined to the justified outrage about his fawning, two-hour-long interview with faux podcast “historian” Daryl Cooper, during which Nazi motivations and culpability for the Holocaust were falsely downplayed and Winston Churchill, rather than Adolf Hitler, was depicted as the true villain of World War II.

A watchdog organization recently released a "Hate Map" highlighting hate both directed at and originating from colleges and universities, among other locations, particularly showcasing liberal hostility toward conservatives.

The New Tolerance Campaign's Hate Map is an interactive tool that shows the geographic location of instances of politically motivated hate on campuses around the country. It lists 201 organizations or individuals that have engaged in "hard left extremism."

The map is intended to counter the Southern Poverty Law Center's Hate Map that claims to show hate from conservatives directed at liberals, according to the group.

The campaign states the organizations listed in the map have "promoted, inspired, or directly engaged in physical violence against those with whom they disagree."

Towards a Pact for the Future

The Summit of the Future (22-23 Sep.) will produce an inter-governmentally negotiated, action-oriented Pact for the Future with chapters on Sustainable development and financing for development; International peace and security; Science, technology and innovation and digital cooperation; Youth and future generations; and Transforming global governance.

<https://www.un.org/sustainabledevelopment/sdg-moment/>

the roadmap to a better future for all – are off track. However, the SDG Moment 2024, taking place Tuesday 24 September, will show that dramatic progress is still possible between now and 2030 if the world comes together to act with decisiveness and determination to reach our shared destination by 2030.

The path to 2030 must be driven by just and inclusive transitions. Convened by UN Secretary-General António Guterres, the SDG Moment 2024 will demonstrate that transformation is not only possible but essential. It will spotlight the role of just transitions in reshaping food systems to alleviate hunger while preserving nature, advancing the renewable energy revolution for a path to net-zero emissions, and ensuring that digital connectivity empowers youth, women, older people, and persons with disabilities. These transitions are vital to secure a more sustainable and equitable future and the SDG Moment 2024 will emphasize the importance of quality education, skills development, and access to decent work as pillars of the 2030 Agenda.

About the SDG Moment 2024

Building on the momentum from the 2023 SDG Summit and the outcomes of the Summit of the Future, the fourth SDG Moment will highlight inspiring examples of progress from around the world and emphasize the role of political leadership, SDG investment, and global partnerships in achieving food systems transformation, the renewable energy shift, and expanded digital connectivity. The Moment will also explore how enhanced social protection and decent work opportunities can ensure these transitions drive poverty eradication, reduce inequalities, and empower women and young people.

The event will bring together high-level Government representatives alongside inspiring advocacy from youth leaders, businesses, academia, and UN agencies.

United Nations legal officer is caught on camera stating the UN's ambition to become a world government

At the end of last month, Mug Club Undercover recorded Jorge Paoletti, a self-described "Globalist" and a legal affairs official in the UN Treaty Section, saying: "They created this institution [the UN] which is the closest we've ever got to kind of like a world government. A world state," Paoletti said.

"Like a one-world government?" the undercover reporter asked. "Exactly," Paoletti responded.

In Paoletti's words, the UN aspires to be a globalist world government that rules over Earth's citizens, all of whom would be forced to adhere to a uniform identity.

“One of the objectives of the UN is to create an identity of a global citizen ... of someone who shares an identity, a political identity, with everyone on this planet,” he said.

Paoletti lamented, however, that the UN is not as effective as it should be – though this could change if the organisation had military power.

“The United Nations does not have its own army,” Paoletti said.

“Should it?” the undercover journalist asked. “Absolutely,” the official responded.

“Pact for the Future”: Nations To Swear Fealty To UN

On September 22nd, dignitaries from around the world will gather at the United Nations headquarters in New York for a meeting called Summit of the Future.

At the conference, world leaders will sign Pact for the Future, an accord in which member states will pledge their allegiance to the UN as a central, unifying government.

“We, the Heads of State and Government, representing the peoples of the world, have gathered at United Nations Headquarters to protect the needs and interests of present and future generations through the actions in this Pact for the Future,” the document begins.

“We recognize that the multilateral system and its institutions, with the United Nations and its Charter at the centre, must be strengthened to keep pace with a changing world.”

Member states then repeatedly “reaffirm” their “unwavering commitment” to the UN, its charter, its purposes, its principles, and Agenda 2030. They vow to comply with the UN’s International Court of Justice and promise to “reform the international financial architecture.”

Digital Currency Will Become The Ultimate Tool Of The Surveillance State

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) published a report recently that warns about the very serious privacy risks associated with central bank digital currencies (CBDCs).

According to the paper, entitled "Central Bank Digital Currency Data Use and Privacy Protection," any central bank can use its CBDC system to collect all sorts of private information about users. It could then turn that private information over to the authorities for mass surveillance and possibly persecution reasons.

"CBDC data allows for commercial exploitation while also raising the possibility of state surveillance," the IMF warns.

The way CBDCs work is that every time a transaction is made, all sorts of private information is transferred and uploaded into the blockchain as proof. That information is then open game for government authorities and anyone else to exploit it for ulterior purposes.

"Central bank digital currency (CBDC), as a digital form of central bank money, may allow for a 'digital trail' - data - to be collected and stored," the paper explains.

"In contrast to cash, CBDC could be designed to potentially include a wealth of personal data, encapsulating transaction histories, user demographics, and behavioral patterns. Personal data could establish a link between counterparty identities and transactions."

The paper goes on to explain that there is economic value in CBDCs due to the data trail it creates. Data is considered an "infrastructural resource that can be used by an unlimited number of users and for an unlimited number of purposes as an input to produce goods and services."

"CBDC data could potentially be harvested by financial institutions that, in turn, could help develop data-driven businesses," the paper continues.

Global AI treaty won't stop tech-worshippers from pursuing the posthuman era

As international organizations expend greater and greater effort in attempting to regulate artificial intelligence according to the “shared values” of the “international community,” Christians must realize they cannot trust such organizations to deter the true dangers of AI.

This is because these so-called “shared values” are not shared by Christians, and because such international treaties do nothing to stop the religious ambitions of the tech-worshippers of Silicon Valley.

On Thursday, the “Council of Europe Framework Convention on Artificial Intelligence and Human Rights, Democracy and the Rule of Law” was opened for signature, and was signed by Israel, the United States, the United Kingdom, the European Union, and others.

The document emphasizes the “need to establish, as a matter of priority, a globally applicable legal framework setting out common general principles and rules governing the activities within the lifecycle of artificial intelligence systems that effectively preserves shared values and harnesses the benefits of artificial intelligence for the promotion of these values...”

Yet what are these “shared values” which the Council hopes to preserve and promote via AI?

Unsurprisingly, they include all the well-known anti-family, anti-Christian values which leftist cultural revolutionaries have been pushing for decades through similar international organizations and their many partners.

One particularly extreme example of the “shared values” that the Council of Europe embraces is its open support of the Yogyakarta Principles.

In addition to opposing the sanctity of marriage and Christian teaching on men and women, the Yogyakarta Principles state that children have the right to “autonomy and self-determination,” and thus that chemical and surgical “modifications to their sex characteristics” to accord with the “child’s views” can be “consented to by the child.”

A 2009 paper from the Council of Europe’s Commissioner for Human Rights recommends that member states “make gender reassignment procedures, such as hormone treatment, surgery and psychological support, accessible for transgender persons, and ensure that they are reimbursed by public health insurance schemes.”

An additional example of the Council of Europe’s radical values is its stance on abortion.

In a document published earlier this year, the Council of Europe expressed support for women’s “right” to end the lives of their children at any stage of their development in the womb, recommending that nations “repeal laws and regulations that...prohibit abortion based on gestational limits.”

As AI is increasingly used to curate and disseminate the information which the world consumes daily, and much of Christian ethics (particularly Christian sexual ethics) has been rejected as hateful and discriminatory by a large portion of the creators and regulators of AI, it is not difficult to see that AI will be used to suppress Christian teaching at an international level.

DOJ Drops Charges, Retools Plea Deals for Jan. 6 Defendants

The Justice Department has been forced to offer retooled plea deals or drop charges against people who breached the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6.

This comes in the aftermath of a Supreme Court ruling that narrowed how federal prosecutors can pursue obstruction charges against those involved Jan. 6. Prosecutors are now offering plea deals that do not include obstruction charges.

According to Justice Department statistics, there were roughly 259 defendants facing an obstruction charge when the high court issued its ruling that narrowed how the law can be applied
