TRAIN WRECK: Biden, Schumer putting US-Israeli relations on a collision course
Biden is cursing Netanyahu and demanding Israel not finish Hamas off in Rafah

The state of U.S.-Israeli relations is rapidly deteriorating.

And senior American Democrats are to blame.

Let me explain.

First, some context.

I'm in Dallas this week as part of a six-week media and speaking tour across the United States.

At churches and conferences, in meetings with pastors and other Evangelical leaders, and during various radio and TV interviews, I've been explaining the Hamas invasion of Oct. 7 and the horrific and painful war that we Israelis find ourselves in, and answering a wide range of questions.

During the "Chris Krok Show" on Sunday night on WBAP — the powerhouse Dallas radio station that's heard in 38 states — I was asked to comment on U.S. President Joe Biden and Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer openly and viciously attacking Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in the midst of a hot war.

I didn't hold back.

Biden is attacking Netanyahu behind closed doors with vulgar and obscene language, and White House aides are leaking those diatribes to the mainstream media.

Biden is also demanding that Netanyahu stop prosecuting the war against Hamas, telling the prime minister in a phone call that he will not support Israel invading the city of Rafah, the southernmost city in the Gaza Strip and the last stronghold of Hamas leaders and terrorists.

If this weren't bad enough, Schumer is publicly attacking Netanyahu as the main "obstacle to peace" in Israel, saying that Netanyahu has "lost his way," and calling for immediate elections in Israel to get rid of the prime minister.

All of this is shameful, I said, and setting U.S.-Israeli relations on a collision course.

"The good news is that Israel is absolutely winning this war in terms of the military conflict," I told Chris.

"We have defeated about 20 of Hamas' 24 brigades. We have taken out most, but not quite all, of their terrorist leaders, and we've rescued or persuaded Hamas to give up and give back almost half of our hostages."

"But we are losing the battle for public opinion. And part of the reason is because of President Biden and Senate Majority Leader Schumer, who keep attacking the prime minister of Israel as being dangerous and irresponsible when we're fighting a bloodthirsty, genocidal enemy."

"That is not helpful," I noted. "It is not helpful for an American president and Senate majority leader to throw a democratically-elected leader under the bus during a war."

Indeed, such attacks on Israel's government could lead to a "train wreck" in relations between Jerusalem and Washington.

Israel slams arms sale ban as Trudeau caves to minority party: 'history will judge' Canada 'harshly'

Canada has experienced an explosion of antisemitic activity with 132% increase in hate crimes

Canada has announced it will not export weapons to Israel anymore, drawing immediate condemnation from the Israeli government.

"It's regrettable that the Canadian government is taking a step that undermines Israel's right to self-defense against Hamas terrorists, who have committed terrible crimes against humanity and against innocent Israeli civilians, including the elderly, women, and children," Israeli Foreign Minister Israel Katz wrote on X.

"History will judge Canada's current action harshly," Katz added. "Israel will continue to fight until Hamas is destroyed and all hostages are returned home."

The minority left-leaning New Democrats Party (NDP) in Canada drafted the initial motion to stop all future arms exports to Israel, but the government embraced the measure of its minority partner, The Times of Israel reported.

The original motion included a cease-fire measure, recognition of a Palestinian state and a weapons sales suspension, but the government negotiated several key changes, including a change to only seek the "establishment of the State of Palestine as part of a negotiated two-state solution," the Toronto Star reported.

Biden Regime Invites Hamas-Linked CAIR to the White House
Then lies about it.

Every aspect of this story is bad, and each horrifying aspect is competing with the others for which can have the most negative consequences for the American people. After Jews suffered attacks in Chicago, the Biden regime reached out not to Jewish leaders, but to Muslim groups, including open supporters of Hamas. The Muslims, however, enraged at the regime's continued (albeit hollow) support for Israel, refused to show. Then a Biden regime wonk lied brazenly and denied that one of the worst of the Muslim groups was even invited. This is the state of our staggered, sputtering republic in the fourth year of this radically anti-American and anti-democratic regime.

This latest imbroglio started when Politico reported Thursday that “Illinois leaders in the Palestinian communities angry over how President Joe Biden has handled the Middle East war have turned down a request by the White House to meet in Chicago today.” We can see who is claiming the moral high ground, and who has the upper hand. After Hamas brutally and gleefully murdered 1,200 Israelis on Oct. 7, 2023, Islamic groups and their leftist allies immediately began to claim victimhood at any sign of Israeli self-defense, fabricating casualty numbers before a world that was all too eager to be fooled, and even preposterously claiming that Israel was conducting a “genocide” when independent observers have dubbed the IDF “the most moral army in the world.”

Despite all that, Muslim and leftist leaders around the world know that making wild claims about Israel and affecting a posture of aggrieved victimhood can win them ready concessions from the U.S., the European Union, and the United Nations, and so they’ve been striking victim poses aggressively since Oct. 7. It has worked. The Biden regime is on its heels, desperately worried by threats from the likes of Nihad Awad of the Hamas-linked Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) and the winsome Rep. Rashida Tlaib (D-Ramallah) to withhold the Muslim vote if the regime doesn’t betray Israel. And so it has been doing just that, step by step, in slow motion: $100 million to Gaza, $10 billion to Hamas’ financiers, the Islamic Republic of Iran, and ever-increasing pressure on the Netanyahu government.

As Biden Condemns 'Islamophobia,' U.S. Muslim Clerics Make Spine-Chilling Remarks About Jews

Friday was a day that ended in a “y,” and so it was another occasion for leftist virtue-signaling. Old Joe Biden’s ghostwriter wrote on X: “On the International Day to Combat Islamophobia, we recognize the hate that Muslims face because of their beliefs and the ugly resurgence of Islamophobia following the war in Gaza. Let us rededicate ourselves to a world where people of all faiths are free to live without fear.” Biden hasn’t said a word, however, about the hate that Jews face from Muslims themselves. And it’s no wonder: such talk would clash with the left’s narrative.

Hooper included that last tag because he linked to a Monday article in The Intercept entitled “Let’s Name It: Not Just Islamophobia, but Anti-Palestinianism.” This article leads off with three alleged incidents of “Islamophobia,” at least one of which, the killing of three Muslim college students in Vermont, has nothing actually to do with hatred of Muslims at all. The killer had, in fact, defended Hamas, and so there was no evidence whatsoever that his murders had to do with “anti-Palestinian hate.”

Meanwhile, at the Islamic Center of Warren, Michigan, Imam Abdou Alwaly Zindani recently preached: “One Jewish man in New York was talking to a Palestinian businessman. First, the [Palestinian] said: ‘Don’t worry, Jewish man. One day will come, and we will slaughter you like a sheep and the stone and the tree will work undercover with us. They will tell us: ‘Hey Muslim, come. Somebody is hiding here, get up and kill him.’”

More than 90% of Palestinians say no atrocities perpetrated on Oct. 7
Five months into Israel's war with Hamas, nearly three quarters of Palestinians in Gaza, Judea and Samaria support the Oct. 7 attack.

Ninety-three percent of Palestinians believe that Hamas did not commit atrocities during its mass invasion of southern Israel on Oct. 7, and 72% support the attack, according to recent polling conducted by the Palestinian Center for Policy and Survey Research (PCPSR).

The survey of 1,580 Palestinians in Gaza, Judea and Samaria was conducted between March 5 and 10 via in-person interviews. The margin of error was 3%.

Red Cross denies NGO's claim it's involved in terror 'pay-for-slay' policy
New Palestinian Media Watch expose quoted PLO Prisoner Affairs Authority chief, who described the Red Cross as “an essential partner in the process that enables payment to imprisoned Palestinians.”

A document issued by the International Red Cross Committee (ICRC) is essential for terrorists serving time in Israeli prisons in order to receive salaries from the Palestinian Authority (PA) under the policy known as 'Pay for Slay,' an expose conducted by watchdog NGO Palestinian Media Watch (PMW) reveals, quoting Palestinian officials.

The ICRC claimed in response that such documents are provided around the world as part of their humanitarian activity and denied any involvement in the PA's stipends (see full response below).

This issue has been stipulated in PA regulations for many years despite an Israeli law that prohibits "providing incentives for terrorist activity." Stipends paid by the Palestinian Authority to Palestinian terrorists charged with committing terror attacks against Israelis have been subject to scrutiny for the past several years.

Imam fires at Israelis in Hebron on Shabbat, shot by IDF

An Imam fired at Jews in Hebron on Saturday with a Kalashnikov rifle and was neutralized by the IDF before he caused any injuries or deaths.

Muhammad Nofal, the imam of Hebron's al-Qassam mosque, hid behind a gravestone as he fired at Jewish residents.

IDF Central Command chief Maj. Gen. Yehuda Fox and troops carried out a full assessment of the scene and it has been reported that the IDF is searching for additional terrorists in the area.

Since October 7th, thousands of terrorist incidents have been reported in Judea and Samaria, most of which have been thwarted by the IDF before people were harmed.

Houthi Cruise Missile Hits Israel in Ominous First

Yemen's Houthis have claimed responsibility for a cruise missile launched from the Red Sea which landed near Eilat, in what marks the first time a projectile fired from the Iranian-backed group has struck Israel's territory.

The Iran-aligned militants have repeatedly launched drones and missiles at international commercial shipping in the region since November, in what they say is in solidarity with Palestinians against Israel's military assault in Gaza.

Previously, missiles and drones fired from Yemen had hit neighboring countries or were intercepted by air defenses.

Israel Defense Forces (IDF) said on Tuesday it had tracked a "suspicious aerial target" which it confirmed was a cruise missile, The Times of Israel reported. No damage or injuries were caused and Newsweek has contacted the IDF for comment.

Kushner notes value of Gaza 'waterfront property' if people would focus on livelihood

Ex-White House adviser and Trump's son-in-law laments Palestinian leaders' squandering 'decades of Western aid on tunnels and weapons rather than on improving lives'

Jared Kushner, Donald Trump's former White House adviser and his son-in-law, praised the "very valuable" potential of Gaza's "waterfront property," suggesting that Israel should remove civilians while it moving to "clean up" the area.

"Gaza's waterfront property, it could be very valuable, if people would focus on building up livelihoods," Kushner said in an interview dated Feb. 15, posted earlier this month on the YouTube channel of the Middle East Initiative, a program of Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government, and reported first on Tuesday by The Guardian.

“If you think about all the money that’s gone into this tunnel network and into all the munitions, if that would have gone into education or innovation, what could have been done?”

Gaza's Pier Could Be an International Refugee Pandora's Box

U.S. ships will soon head to the Gaza coast to build a floating pier to provide Gazans with humanitarian aid. While President Joe Biden trumpets the pier's potential to facilitate emergency assistance, it is unclear if he has thought through its complexities, and especially the legal implications for building such a structure.

As troops deploy from Newport News, Virginia, shocked at the short notice, the Pentagon is under the clock to develop a detailed plan before they arrive in the Eastern Mediterranean. Very roughly, the Pentagon seeks to construct a large floating dock adjacent to their ships. From there, transfer vessels will carry aid to a floating pier with a two-lane causeway stretching 1800 feet to Gaza's coast. Biden says there will be no U.S. boots on the ground in Gaza, just on the pier. The biggest analogy to the Biden plan was a Joint Logistics Over-the-Shore operation to provide emergency food aid after the 2010 Haiti earthquake given that country's civil unrest or to a lesser extent Hurricane Mitch in Honduras in 1998.

The circumstances in Gaza, however, are different. Gaza is an active war zone with Hamas embedded within the civilian population and stealing aid that comes through. This poses a security problem: Could civilians stampede the pier to either seek supplies or find safety? Does the United States have a plan to keep Hamas from diverting aid? Will there be an inspection regime for international assistance utilizing the pier given Hamas' record of diverting aid to its military, tunnel, and terror infrastructure?

Under maritime law, U.S. naval ships are U.S. territory, even while they are in another nation's territorial waters. Unlike in Haiti where a pier already existed and the Navy simply repaired it and then docked its ships, this pier in Gaza's waters, whether built by the U.S. armed forces or independent contractors, could be considered U.S. property, and therefore, U.S. territory. This raises a number of follow-on legal questions that the Biden administration has yet to answer:

First, if the U.S. constructs a floating dock that can be attached to its ships, is that extension also considered U.S. territory?

Second, if the U.S. constructs a pier that is movable or removable, to whom does that structure belong? If it is anchored to Gaza's beach, does it become part of Gaza's territory or does it remain U.S. property?

Third, if the pier is, indeed, U.S. property as it is removable and if it is U.S. territory, would anyone entering it be able to claim asylum or refugee status in the United States?

Illegal migrant from Lebanon caught at border admitted he's a Hezbollah terrorist hoping 'to make a bomb' — and was headed for NY

A Lebanese migrant who was caught sneaking over the border admitted he's a member of Hezbollah, he hoped to make a bomb, and his destination was New York, The Post can reveal.

Basel Bassel Ebbadi, 22, was caught by the US Border Patrol on March 9 near El Paso, Texas. While in custody, he was asked what he was doing in the US, to which he replied, "I'm going to try to make a bomb," according to a Border Patrol document exclusively obtained by The Post.

But Ebbadi later claimed in an interview that he had been trying to flee Lebanon and Hezbollah because he "didn't want to kill people" and said "once you're in, you can never get out," according to internal US Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) documents.

Hizballah chief Nasrallah calls Dearborn, Michigan 'influential,' 'salutes' anti-Israel demonstrations in America

Many in America and across the West continue to naively believe that the Palestinian “resistance” (from the River to the Sea) is a regional dispute about land, when in reality it’s an attempt to obliterate the Jewish state as part of a global effort of Islamic conquest by jihadists.

The protests now seen throughout the West are not by any means peaceful. They represent a spring-boarding of the jihad “resistance” to the West, and if left uncontrolled, much worse will follow.

Note Nasrallah’s warning:

We should salute and be grateful to the Arabs, muslims, and non-Muslims who tell Biden ‘we are uncommitted to vote for you’ – they are very influential at this stage.

Indeed “they” are “very influential,” due to authorities appeasing them. Jihadists grow powerful in the fertile soil of appeasement. Nasrallah also includes “non-Muslims” in his salute, that is, those who are unaware to the extent they’re being used as dhimmis in service of the ultimate cause of achieving victory and establishing a global caliphate. This underclass of dhimmis has historically paid a special tax to their overlords: the jizya, as per Qur’an 9:29. Dearborn, Michigan is particularly noteworthy for more than its high Muslim population; it has been dubbed “America’s Jihad Capital.”

Nasrallah also states rightly that “Biden is afraid of one thing only — that his policy and actions in Gaza will lead him to lose the Presidential Elections.” Nasrallah knows this to be true as does everyone who has been paying attention.

A California Synagogue Leased Space to a Muslim Group, Telling Members They Had an Obligation To 'Strengthen the Bonds' Between Communities. Things Went South From There.

Hamakom synagogue leased space to Islamic group and covered up pictures of Israeli hostages

A California synagogue axed its leadership and is struggling to retain members after leasing its facility to a Muslim group that brought in an anti-Israel speaker who compared Israel to Nazi Germany.

Soon after the Islamic Society began using Hamakom's facility, it hosted anti-Israel activist Hussam Ayloush, who said last year that Israel did not have a right to defend itself following the Oct. 7 attack and compared Israel to Nazi Germany. The invite led many Jewish members to threaten to resign from the shul, according to internal emails viewed by the Free Beacon, and prompted Hamakom to sever its rental contract with the Islamic Society within days of inking it.

Russian military police set up additional checkpoint in Golan Heights
Checkpoint to monitor situation on Bravo disengagement line separating Israeli and Syrian forces

The Russian military police have set up an additional checkpoint in the Golan Heights area in order to monitor the disengagement line separating Israeli and Syrian forces, an official said Thursday.

Military police will monitor the situation on the Bravo disengagement line, Rear Adm. Vadim Kulit, deputy chief of the Russian Center for Reconciliation of the Opposing Parties in Syria, said at a press briefing in Damascus.

Russia has been warning since the outbreak of the Israel-Hamas war in the Gaza Strip last October that the conflict may spread further in the region, including to countries that have territorial disputes with Israel.
