Russia and China's super weapons and the threat of nuclear war
The US must fight smart, not hard, as Putin and Xi stockpile hypersonics

After decades of disarmament, we are at the dawn of a new age of nuclear weapons. Years of stockpile reduction following the end of the Cold War have come to an abrupt end as China ploughs billions into new armaments and the detente between Russia and the US collapses....

Is China Pre-Positioning Vast Numbers of Soldiers, Spies, and Saboteurs in U.S. Communities for the Coming War?

There has been a dramatic spike in the number of Chinese nationals that are coming across our borders. The vast majority of them are men, and the vast majority of those men are of military age. Most of the time, when these men are intercepted by U.S. officials they claim that they have come to apply for asylum in the United States. Of course they know that their court dates will be set far into the future because our system is being absolutely overwhelmed by asylum seekers right now.

As they wait for their court dates, most of them are released into the United States and are permitted to go wherever they want. So what this means is that thousands upon thousands of Chinese men of military age have been allowed into this country, and we don't know where they are or what they are doing.

According to Fox News, the number of Chinese nationals that are being encountered at our borders far exceeds anything that we have ever seen before...

So far in fiscal year 2023, U.S. Customs and Border Protection encountered nearly 40,000 Chinese nationals on both the southern and northern borders, far surpassing the approximately 23,500 and 27,800 encountered in fiscal years 2021 and 2022, respectively.

In July, more than 6,000 crossed the border, just two months after the COVID-19-era rule that allowed for expelling illegal migrants quickly – known as Title 42 – expired. Obviously these Chinese nationals do not walk to our borders from China. So how do they get here?

And once they get here, Chinese nationals often end up in places where they aren't supposed to be...

The Chinese nationals posed as 'tourists' wandered onto a missile launch site in New Mexico, as first reported by the Wall Street Journal. In addition, some reportedly staged as scuba divers in order to get close to a Florida rocket launch site, while others claimed to be staying on an Army base in Alaska.

Th operatives have reportedly claimed to be tourists who are 'lost' and unable to find their way to a Burger King or McDonalds coincidentally close to a U.S. military base. These are just the ones that have been caught.

Final Hour

Nuclear War, First Responders Will Have To Wait For The Deadly Fallout To Decay Before They Enter A Hot Zone So The More You Prepare, The Better Your Odds Of Surviving A Nuclear Crisis

No one wants to think about a nuclear crisis – and hopefully it will never happen – but we all must accept the fact nuclear tensions are rising globally with Russia and China (and others are seeking nukes) so we should prepare ourselves and our loved ones in the event the unthinkable strikes our soil.

For decades, movies and some in the media have portrayed a nuclear attack as a "doomsday" event implying most people would be killed on impact ... and survivors would want to die once they come out of their shelters.

In reality, unless you are actually at ground zero or within a several mile radius of the blast zone (depending on the size of the nuke, of course), there is a very high probability you'll survive as long as you...

limit your exposure to radiation and fallout, take shelter with proper shielding, and wait for the most dangerous radioactive materials to decay.

In other words, you CAN survive a nuke attack ... but you MUST make an effort to learn what to do! By learning about potential threats, we are all better prepared to know how to react if something happens.

PUTIN ON THE BLITZ Putin's top ally Dmitry Medvedev warns of World War 3 if UK troops are sent to Ukraine & says they'd be 'destroyed'

LADIMIR Putin's closest ally has threatened to unleash World War 3 on the West if UK sends troops on to Ukrainian soil.

Former Russian President Dmitry Medvedev said on Sunday that any Brit soldiers training soldiers inside Ukraine would be legitimate targets for Russian forces and "ruthlessly destroyed".

He wrote on Telegram: "Terrorists will again carry out an attack in the style of September 11, 2001, but with an atomic or biological component.

"Or even worse: one of the leaders of nuclear countries will lose their nerve, and he will make an emotional decision to use weapons of mass destruction."

He ended his ominous message with: "And then that would be it. The end of the ball game.

American Apocalypse? 71% Don't Trust U.S. Government To Prevent Doomsday

U.S. politics continue to be a chaotic subject, and a new poll finds the majority of Americans are rapidly losing faith in their country's leaders. From the ousting of the Speaker of the House to the mounting controversies engulfing the current president and his predecessor, over seven in 10 people say there's no one they trust to save them from an end-of-the-world event. Such problems only push the so-called "Doomsday Clock" to tick closer to end times.

Established in 1947 by a group of atomic scientists, including the revered Albert Einstein, the Doomsday Clock serves as a barometer for humanity's proximity to global annihilation. It is a metaphorical measure of humanity's vulnerability to cataclysmic events, such as nuclear war, climate change, pandemics, or asteroid impacts. The closer the clock's hands are to midnight, the closer we presumably are to a doomsday scenario.

According to a survey of 6,200 Americans conducted by BonusFinder.com, 71.2 percent of Americans say they have no faith in the U.S. government to save them or prevent a doomsday event. Even more unnerving, many respondents believe Doomsday could come within the next year.

Over half the poll (55.8%) think Doomsday will come in the form of a climate change-related catastrophe, while a third believe another virus will sweep the globe and a quarter of respondents fear the start of World War III. Another seven percent are betting on an alien invasion, while the same number believe 2024 will finally be the year zombies walk the Earth.

US and Russia To Hold Nationwide Emergency Alert Drills on Same Day

The U.S. and Russia have both announced they will be holding nationwide emergency alert exercises on Wednesday.

Tensions between Washington and Moscow have intensified throughout Russian President Vladimir Putin's full-scale invasion of Ukraine. Putin issued vague nuclear threats in February over Western tank supplies to Ukraine.

The U.S. Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) said that beginning at approximately 2:20 p.m. ET, it will conduct a nationwide test of its Emergency Alert System (EAS) for TVs and radios, and Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) for phones.

Cell towers will broadcast a signal for approximately 30 minutes, causing WEA-compatible wireless phones that are switched on, within range of an active cell tower and whose wireless provider participates in WEA, to receive the test message.

Russian authorities have asked the public to "remain calm" when a nationwide emergency alert drill is held on Wednesday.

"Hearing the sound of a siren, you need to remain calm and not panic, turn on the TV—any publicly accessible channel or radio—and listen to the information message," Russia's Ministry of Emergency Situations (MCHS) said via its Telegram channel.

The ministry said such drills are necessary "to be confident in the performance of all existing systems for the timely delivery of signals and information to the population in the event of emergency situations."

A Terrorist State On The Brink Of Nukes - How Did We Get Here?

Iran has been in the news lately for a number of reasons. One is the Biden administration's latest instance of appeasement of the Islamist regime in which it paid $6 billion in frozen funds to it as a ransom to gain the release of five U.S. citizens. Another involves the revelations published last week in Semafor in which the world learned about Iran's influence operations in the United States and the way Biden administration officials like the currently suspended Robert Malley enabled them.

As important as those stories are, they pale in significance beside one that has yet to be even mentioned in The New York Times or The Washington Post. It involves the U.S. Department of Defense's 2023 Strategy for Countering Weapons of Mass Destruction report that was, in a typically deceptive strategy known as the Friday afternoon news dump, published late last week.

In an echo of past American intelligence failures, it assessed that Iran is "not pursuing a nuclear weapons program at this time." However, it added the following ominous statement, noting that Tehran now "has the capacity to produce enough fissile material for a nuclear device in less than two weeks."

In other words, the game is over. After a decade and a half of American and Israeli hand-wringing about Iran's quest for nuclear weapons--and knowledge about their program is necessarily incomplete because it has barred inspectors from the International Atomic Energy Agency from carrying out their already inadequate efforts to monitor what they are doing--Washington is acknowledging that Tehran has become a threshold nuclear power.

In theory, fear of American and/or Israeli military action--however unlikely the former might be--might permanently deter Iran from moving forward to put together a nuclear weapon in the 12 days the DOD's report says that they can do it. Alternatively, once that process is set in motion, it is theoretically possible that military threats or attacks could prevent the Iranian bomb from becoming a reality.

A Saudi Deal Could Set the Mideast Nuclear Domino Effect in Motion

With Iran, Turkey and Egypt also in the mix, whether or not a 'Saudi deal' with America and Israel occurs, the idea of a nuclear Middle East is no longer just a matter of diplomatic or academic debate

For many years, the United States, Israel, Middle East analysts and nuclear experts have all warned that the region could be on the brink of a nuclear domino effect. As they see it, if Iran becomes a military nuclear power, proliferation will follow, with Saudi Arabia likely pursuing its own nuclear deterrence.

Pope Francis advocates for powerful global government not subject to 'changing political conditions'

Francis' new climate document Laudate Deum 'dangerously asserts the transference of moral authority to atheistic globalists who serve not God, but the Prince of this World,' stated Michael Hichborn.

Highlighting his desire for a supra-national body to ensure that "climate change" measures are implemented, Pope Francis wrote:

The issue is that they [unspecified global organizations] must be endowed with real authority, in such a way as to "provide for" the attainment of certain essential goals. In this way, there could come about a multilateralism that is not dependent on changing political conditions or the interests of a certain few, and possesses a stable efficacy.

BRICS Vision 2030: Dominate Oil, Accumulate Gold & Suffocate US Dollar

BRICS is now an 11-member alliance after the bloc inducted six new countries into the group during the August summit. Saudi Arabia, the UAE, Argentina, Egypt, Iran, and Ethiopia have been invited to be a part of the group. The expansion has strengthened BRICS financially and on the decision-making front. New multilateral trade deals could be introduced focusing on using local currencies for payment and not the US dollar. BRICS confirmed that the idea of dethroning the US dollar is a long-term goal.

The BRICS alliance is looking to take advantage of the oil markets after the induction of oil-producing countries into the bloc. Saudi Arabia, the UAE, Egypt, Iran, and Ethiopia export millions of barrels of oil every year across the world.

If BRICS forces other countries to settle trade in local currencies and not the US dollar, the greenback will be the first currency to take a hit. The dollar will find less means to fund its deficit if the scenario plays out by 2030.

In addition, BRICS countries are massively accumulating gold and will be the largest buyers of the precious metal in 2023. Speculations are rife that BRICS could back their yet-to-be-released currency with gold to challenge the US dollar. A gold-backed BRICS currency could be a safe bet in the forex markets due to its lower volatility.

In conclusion, BRICS has three sectors to challenge the US dollar by the end of the decade, in 2030. The three sectors are crude oil, gold, and the usage of local currencies for global transactions against the US dollar.

Genocide: Government Reports & Pfizer Documents reveal a Sinister Agenda exists to Depopulate the Planet through COVID Vaccination

If an experimental vaccine were to damage the heart and immune system in a significant number of individuals who received it, it is possible that it could lead to a decline in the overall population size.

This could occur for several reasons.

First, damage to the heart could lead to an increase in cardiovascular diseases, which are a leading cause of mortality worldwide. This could result in a higher number of deaths among individuals who received the vaccine.

Second, damage to the immune system could leave individuals more susceptible to other infections and diseases, which could also contribute to an increase in mortality.

Last, but by no means least, the negative impacts of the vaccine on fertility and reproductive health could lead to a decline in the number of births, further contributing to a decline in the overall population size.

If such a vaccine were to be developed and distributed, it could potentially lead to depopulation due to increased mortality and decreased fertility.

Unfortunately, the world has found itself in a situation where powerful institutions and Governments have coerced millions of people into getting an experimental Covid-19 vaccine that causes all of the ill-fated things mentioned above.

Official Government reports and confidential Pfizer documents prove it.

Therefore, you are witnessing mass depopulation unfold before your very eyes.

The push for mass Covid-19 vaccination was never about combating a virus. It was about reducing the global population.

This goal aligns with the interests of certain powerful corporations and individuals who stand to benefit from a smaller, more manageable population now that AI is advanced enough to replace hundreds of millions of workers.

FBI secretly targeting Trump supporters: Report

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) has secretly developed a new category of “extremists” that targets Make America Great Again (MAGA) supporters of former President Donald Trump ahead of the 2024 presidential election, according to classified information obtained by Newsweek.

Newsweek reported that the FBI is currently working to investigate and prevent what the agency considers domestic terrorism without referencing individual political affiliations in the United States. However, the information obtained by Newsweek indicates that an overwhelming majority of the FBI’s current “anti-government” investigations are related to MAGA Republicans.

Exclusive: Donald Trump Followers Targeted by FBI as 2024 Election Nears

From the president down, the Biden administration has presented Trump and MAGA as an existential threat to American democracy and talked up the risk of domestic terrorism and violence associated with the 2024 election campaign.

"Donald Trump and MAGA Republicans are a threat to the very soul of this country," President Biden tweeted last September, the first time that he explicitly singled out the former president. "MAGA Republicans aim to question not only the legitimacy of past elections but elections being held now and into the future," Biden said.

Biden's Homeland Security Advisor Liz Sherwood-Randall said: "The use of violence to pursue political ends is a profound threat to our public safety and national security...it is a threat to our national identity, our values, our norms, our rule of law—our democracy."

The FBI and DHS report concludes: "Sociopolitical developments—such as narratives of fraud in the recent general election, the emboldening impact of the violent breach of the U.S. Capitol, conditions related to the COVID-19 pandemic, and conspiracy theories promoting violence—will almost certainly spur some domestic terrorists to try to engage in violence."

But the FBI went further in October 2022 when it created a new subcategory—"AGAAVE-Other"—of those who were a threat but do not fit into its anarchist, militia or Sovereign Citizen groups.

"What other name could we use?" asks one FBI officer who spoke with Newsweek, and who defends what he says is merely a record-keeping change in response to Congressional pressure to track things better. "Obviously if Democratic Party supporters resort to violence, it [AGAAVE-Other] would apply to them as well. It doesn't matter that there is a low likelihood of that. So yes, in practical terms, it refers to MAGA, though the carefully constructed language is wholly nonpartisan."

Harvard 'Social Scientists' Admit Diversity, Equity, Inclusion Training Has Exacerbated Racial Issues

Corporations, academic institutions, and organizations across the US routinely incorporate "diversity, equity, and inclusion" (DEI) training into the education of their staff. In theory this training is designed to minimize so-called "microaggressions" in the workplace and to ensure diversity in hiring. But, according to two Harvard social scientists, DEI training isn't quite working out that way.

They wrote that "There's also no question that the way organizations deal with [DEI training] is more likely to hurt than help." The scientists went on to say, "[A]fter decades of diversity training, many university faculties, state agencies and corporations have made little progress on diversifying the workforce."

Now, this evidence that DEI training is actually causing harm doesn't make the Harvard scientists back away from their commitment to DEI. No, they still accept the basic premise but just suggest new ways of implementing it that they believe may work better.

SBC Credentials Committee Says Megachurch that Knowingly Baptized Gay-Married Man is a 'Cooperating Church'

Demonstrating with deep clarity the compromise and uselessness the SBC Credentials Committee has descended into, they've issued a decision that a Southern Baptist megachurch known for Baptizing unrepentant homosexuals should be considered a cooperating church within the denomination, saying the church has a "faith and practice which closely identifies with the Convention's adopted statement of faith."

First Baptist Church Orlando is a 14,000-member Southern Baptist megachurch led by David Uth. Not only have they knowingly baptized a gay man who is married to another man, but they have allowed that unrepentant gay man to baptize others,

In fact, you'll recall that FBC Orlando is where Danny De Armas, the senior associate pastor, infamously offered a full-blown ecumenical statement devoid of any Gospel truth and antithetical to the teachings of Scripture by highlighting how many illegal immigrants, pro-choice democrats, and LGBTQ folk were 'serving' in his church.

We have transgender, LGBTQ, straight, single, married, divorced and cohabitating people. These same people attend listen, serve, grow and give...We have pro-life and pro-choice...And in the midst of all of this, we have one of the most beautiful worship experiences you can possibly imagine.

Pastor Jim Cummings, who made the request, received the following response back:

Dear Mr. Cummings,

Thank you for reporting your concerns regarding First Baptist Church, Orlando, Florida. Our committee is tasked with forming an opinion regarding whether a church has a "faith and practice which closely identifies with the Convention's adopted statement of faith." Specifically, we were asked to consider whether the church acts to affirm, approve or endorse homosexual behavior.

We have reviewed your submission and have conducted an inquiry of the church in question. Based on the information available to us, our committee has formed the opinion that, at this time, First Baptist Church of Orlando should continue to be considered a cooperating church with the Southern Baptist Convention. Therefore, we decline further consideration and have removed the church from inquiry.

Although we decline further consideration at this time, please be assured of our prayers for you and your ministry.

Sincerely, SBC Credentials Committee

Bible-reading Pentagon commanders halted UFO research 'over fears aliens were demons'

A major figure in the Pentagon's UFO research agency claims that fundamentalist Christians within the establishment blocked him because they thought UFOs came from Hell

Pentagon commanders have clamped down on research into extraterrestrials because of their religious beliefs, it's claimed.

Leading UFO researcher Ron James says senior figures in the US government fear aliens are in fact demons. Ron, who is Director of Media Relations for UFO research group MUFON, claims there is "a very large contingent of people" within the Pentagon who opposed the work of the Advanced Aerospace Threat Identification Program [AATIP] because they think the UAPs regularly reported by US military sources are piloted by creatures from Hell.

He says he was told by Luis Elizondo, who has gone on record as being the boss of AATIP, it "was not just a little voice in The Pentagon...but a huge group of people thought the phenomenon that was being witnessed was demons".

This fundamentalist Christian lobby within the US defence establishment "actually affected Elizondo's ability to get funding," Ron says. Belief in both UFOs and the literal truth of the Bible is not entirely incompatible, he adds.

For example, Ron spoke to staunchly Christian US congressman Tim Burchett. "I sat down and interviewed him. His feeling was that if you look in the Bible and you look at Ezekiel building the wheel there's a lot of people that think that that was a spaceship". He adds that His Holiness the Pope has officially acknowledged that there is life on other planets.

But the strong arm of religious fundamentalism within US political circles has actively hindered research into UFOs – and science generally, Ron says.

"I talked to John Brandenburg, a researcher who's done a lot of work about Mars," Ron told podcaster Julian Dorey," and he told me that he was working under classification as a physicist for a long time and he said there's a big contingent that that extreme fundamental religion is governing what we are investing our energy and our time".

But while some authorities maintain that UFOs can't be from another planet, Ron thinks they could be from another universe altogether.

"This guy came up with this thing called Quantum Jumping, his name was Burt Goldman.

"His theory is that there is another version of you existing in multiple realities but these realities all exist.

"Burt Goldman said that you can 'quantum jump' through certain meditation techniques and certain mental exercises and certain visualisation exercises and actually connect with these other versions of yourself – you can even bring something back from them". Whether any of these versions of ourselves live in realities where demons are coasting through our skies in flying saucers was not mentioned.

Israeli Movement To See The Third Temple Built In Jerusalem

Efforts to reestablish a Jewish presence on the Temple Mount made headlines last week as Yair Hanoch, an activist from the Return to the Mount organization, was arrested at a light rail station near the Old City of Jerusalem while bringing a male sheep to the Temple Mount with the intention of providing it for a sacrifice.

Return to the Mount advocates for allowing Jews to perform the Biblically mandated animal sacrifices on the Temple Mount.

"The time has come to build a Jewish temple and renew the sacrificial works," the organization said after Hanoch's arrest.

Several organizations and individuals have made efforts recently to bring awareness to the current situation on the Temple Mount as well as efforts to rebuild the temple, including new research on where the ark of the covenant might be located.
