All Kinds Of Crazy: Jack Hibbs And Calvary Chapels Become The Latest Targets Of Candace Owens' Delusion

Did trusted California Pastor Jack Hibbs play a role in Charlie Kirk's assassination? Are Calvary Chapels a secret military operation to manipulate Christians into supporting Israel? According to disgraced commentator Candace Owens, the answer to both questions is yes.

In a recent podcast, Owens began by telling her audience about an “interesting tip” her team received about “an old man talking to a bush” during the Turning Point USA campus event where Charlie Kirk was killed.

“Bush did 9/11, but did Bush [shrubbery] do 9/10?” she jokingly asked, implying that this man could somehow be involved in the murder of Kirk.

Owens claimed that she initially disregarded the tip until she uncovered that the identity of this individual was Burton ‘Butch’ Hibbs, the brother of Calvary Chapel Pastor, Jack Hibbs. Suddenly, the man allegedly “talking to a bush” became much more interesting to Owens—who recently began a smear campaign targeting Calvary Chapels.

“Now, what’s compelling is really that, just like every other one of these new age Turning Point pastors, the Hibbs are from a military family,” she stated. “Butch Senior was in the Navy. What he did in the Navy is unclear, but I’m interested. I’m just really interested.”

Owens didn't shy away from implying that Jack Hibbs and other Calvary Chapel pastors were "involved in this Utah story"—meaning Charlie Kirk's assassination.

Jack Hibbs was a close friend and advisor to Charlie Kirk. But apparently, his brother's attendance at the event and his father's military background are evidence enough that he played a role in Kirk's death. This is truly the height of absurdity.

"There's just a lot happening here, is all I want to say," she added. "And I find it to be odd. There's a picture emerging here."

A Zionist Military Operation?

What is Candace Owens' real problem with Calvary Chapels? They stand with Israel, whom Owens hopelessly attempts to link to the murder of Charlie Kirk.

After his death, Owens sought to cast doubt on the Turning Point USA Founder's love for the Jewish State—a claim quickly refuted by the mountains of online content and statements where Kirk vocally declared himself to be a Zionist (an individual who believes the Jews have a historic and God-given right to the land of Israel).

Kirk surrounded himself with like-minded individuals who shared his Biblically founded love for Israel, many of whom were present at the event on the day of his death. Wow, Candace! You really did unearth something shocking, didn't you?

Common sense clearly is not Owens' preferred narrative. According to Owens, it was Israel and the Jew-loving Calvary Chapel preachers whodunit!

The preposterous allegations didn't stop there. Owens went on to call Calvary Chapels an invention of the military, created to carry out a "psychological operation" to garner support for Israel.

“I am wondering about these new age pastors. Like, is that what everybody does when they leave the military, they start a church?... Or are we looking at an operation? That’s the question that I have,” she alleged to the audience. “If you are a part of Calvary Chapel anywhere, I would just wonder if your pastor just came from the military, and if he’s from a high-ranking military family.”

“Did the military execute an operation, a psychological operation on the American people to get us to support Christian Zionism after World War II?” Owens stated. “Kind of the question that I think is hanging in the air right now.”

For the sake of time, I am going to move on from the statement branding Jack Hibbs and other Calvary Chapel Pastors as “new age.” Either she is attempting to redefine the term, or more likely, her lack of theological understanding has rendered her ignorant of what it means.

Is This What We Are Calling Journalism Today?

Owens treated the podcast episode as a citizen-journalism type investigation, where the viewers are “in it together,” sending in tips to uncover the truth. Of course, this isn’t journalism by any stretch of the imagination—and the goal was not to pursue the truth. The podcast desperately strung together unverified theories from across the internet, outlandish exaggerations, and reckless speculation.

As the late Dr. Chuck Missler—who was also a Zionist closely affiliated with Calvary Chapel—often stated: “torture the data long enough, and it will confess to anything.”

Resolution 2803 (2025) received 13 votes in favour, and none against, with permanent members China and Russia abstaining.

The text welcomes the Comprehensive Plan announced by President Trump on 29 September. The first phase of the 20-point plan led to the ceasefire between Hamas and Israel days later.

The resolution also welcomes the establishment of a Board of Peace (BoP) “as a transitional administration” in Gaza that will coordinate reconstruction efforts.

It authorizes the BoP to establish a temporary International Stabilization Force (ISF) in Gaza “to deploy under unified command acceptable to the BoP”.

Countries will contribute personnel to the force “in close consultation and cooperation” with Egypt and Israel.

“Thank you for joining us in charting a new course in the Middle East for Israelis and Palestinians and all the people of the region alike,” US Ambassador Mike Waltz said after the vote.

“Today’s resolution represents another significant step towards a stable Gaza that will be able to prosper and an environment that will allow Israel to live in security.”

He said the ISF “will stabilize the security environment, support the demilitarization of Gaza, dismantle terrorist infrastructure, decommission weapons and maintain the safety of Palestinian civilians.”

Syria’s jihadist-turned-president caps extraordinary transformation with White House visit

Less than a year after his lightning power grab, Syria's president is capping his transformation from jihadist to global statesman in a historic visit to the White House that says as much about the young leader as it does his push for his country's diplomatic reinvention.

Ahmed Al-Sharaa's meeting on Monday – the first ever visit to the White House by a Syrian head of state – is his 20th foreign trip since appointing himself as president of Syria in January, and his second visit to the United States, following his attendance of the United Nations General Assembly in New York in September.

But this meeting was the most high-profile and high stakes yet, a once-unthinkable encounter between the US commander-in-chief and a man who has faced American forces on the battlefield.

“He's a very strong leader,” US President Donald Trump told reporters in the Oval Office following Monday's visit, adding: “He comes from a very tough place, and he's a tough guy. I like him. I get along with him ... and we'll do everything we can to make Syria successful.”

Jets, chips and a clean slate: Saudi Arabia's crown prince got almost everything he wanted from Trump

Just three years ago, the US was openly reconsidering its relationship with Saudi Arabia. President Joe Biden had vowed to make Mohammed bin Salman a pariah. Even arms sales to one of America's closest military partners were put under review.

This week, the crown prince and de facto Saudi leader walked into the Oval Office to find a different world - one where President Donald Trump defended him so forcefully that he scolded a reporter for “embarrassing our guest” when she pressed him on the murder of Washington Post columnist Jamal Khashoggi.

Beyond the Oval Office theatrics, the substance of the administration’s announcements tells the real story of bin Salman’s remarkable rehabilitation in Washington. It also highlights Trump’s willingness to move past the Khashoggi episode and deepen relations with a kingdom that has pledged nearly a trillion dollars in US investments and maintains business ties with his own family.

The visit also underscores the crown prince’s growing clout and his ability to skillfully navigate great power rivalries to his advantage.

‘The bros are back together’: Tesla CEO Elon Musk attends Donald Trump's dinner in his first public White House visit after fallout

Musk’s attendance at Tuesday night’s dinner – his first public White House visit since the fallout – drew immediate attention. A video shared widely on X captured the moment President Trump, accompanied by Melania Trump and the Saudi Crown Prince, spotted Musk. Trump was seen gently tapping the Tesla boss, to which Musk responded with a nod.

The dinner hosted by President Trump was part of efforts to deepen ties with the Saudi leader. Other distinguished guests at the event included Portugal’s football star Cristiano Ronaldo and Nvidia CEO Jensen Huang. OpenAI president and co-founder Greg Brockman also shared a photo with Elon and Huang, captioning it, "the future is bright."

Elon Musk says that in 10 to 20 years, work will be optional and money will be irrelevant thanks to AI and robotics

The Tesla CEO said at the U.S.-Saudi Investment Forum in Washington, D.C., on Wednesday that in the next 10 to 20 years, work will be optional, likening the decision to have a job to the more laborious upkeep of a vegetable garden.

"My prediction is that work will be optional. It'll be like playing sports or a video game or something like that," Musk said. "If you want to work, [it's] the same way you can go to the store and just buy some vegetables, or you can grow vegetables in your backyard. It's much harder to grow vegetables in your backyard, and some people still do it because they like growing vegetables."

Super Creepy 'The World Ahead 2026' Economist Magazine Cover Signals War, Pestilence, & Financial Collapse Next Year

There is one magazine that represents the interests of the global elite more than any other. It is known as "The Economist", and each year it puts out an issue that is dedicated to what is coming in the year ahead. As we have seen so many times before, these issues tend to be alarmingly accurate. The reason why they are so accurate is because the ultra-wealthy elite have an enormous amount of influence over the course of human events. If they are absolutely determined to make something happen, there is a good chance that it is going to happen. Ominously, it appears that they are anticipating a great deal of global chaos in 2026.

The Economist has been around since 1843, but it has never had a very large readership among the general population.

Ultimately, it is a publication by the elite and for the elite.

If you want to know what the global elite are thinking, this is the publication that you need to be reading.

And the cover for “The World Ahead 2026” issue is perhaps the most ominous that they have ever published...

When you look at that cover, what stands out to you?

To me, the fact that there are so many symbols relating to war really got my attention.

There is a huge red tank on one side of the cover, and another huge red tank on the other side of the cover.

At the top there are several large missiles that look like they are ready to be launched, and at the bottom there are more large missiles.

Also, right in the middle we see two enormous swords that are crossed.

That is clearly meant to symbolize war.

Obviously they believe that war will continue to be a major theme in 2026, and that is something that I have been consistently warning about.

And they also seem to think that certain individuals will continue to be major players in world affairs during the coming year.

Volodymyr Zelensky is clearly visible in the upper right hand portion of the cover.

Getting back to the magazine cover, I also noticed that there is a chart that seems to depict some sort of a financial crash right under the crossed swords.

And not too far below that chart, there is a red image of a broken dollar sign.

In addition, throughout the bottom half of the graphic it looks like paper currency is falling everywhere.

Wow.

Obviously they are trying to communicate something about the global economy, and it certainly isn't good.

Will 2026 be a year of financial collapse?

We won't have to wait too long to find out.

I also noticed two gigantic syringes near the bottom of the cover.

And throughout the cover there are lots of "pills" floating around.

I started to count them, but there are just too many.

So what does this mean?

Are they suggesting that another global pandemic is on the way?

Will 2026 be a year when people are taking shots and pills to try to protect themselves from a major pestilence that has broken out?

Lastly, I wanted to mention the giant raised fist near the top of the cover.

A raised fist has been the primary symbol of resistance to the Trump administration.

And I don't think that it is an accident that the giant raised fist has been placed right on top of the American flag in this graphic.

Are the global elite planning civil unrest in major U.S. cities in 2026?

We know that they have been lavishly funding far left protest groups in this country.

Will 2026 be a year when mass protests against Trump go to the next level?

I think that is their plan.

I think that they fully intend to unleash chaos, and that fits perfectly with what I am expecting too.

Unfortunately for the elite, I do not believe that they will be able to control the chaos that is coming.

We really are right on the brink of a global nightmare, and once it starts nobody is going to be able to wake up from it.
