Trump blasts Spain, targets Greenland at NATO summit

US President Donald Trump on Wednesday threatened to cut off trade with Spain and insisted he still wanted Greenland, as NATO leaders met for their summit in Ankara.

“I’m very upset with NATO,” he told reporters as he met alliance chief Mark Rutte ahead of the main summit session.

“I’m not happy with NATO because of what they did with Greenland, and I’m not happy with NATO because of the fact that they didn’t want to help us with the number one state sponsor of terror, that’s Iran.”

Trump singled out Spain for particular criticism calling it a “terrible partner in NATO”.

“Spain is a wasted cause. We don’t want to do any trade business with Spain anymore,” he said, asking his Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent to “cut it off”.

While Trump is still smarting from the European response to his war with Iran, he still also has not dropped his desire for NATO member Denmark’s territory of Greenland.

“Greenland is a big problem for us,” he told reporters, saying it was “very important for the United States, but it’s not important for Denmark”.

“We need it for protection of the world, not just the United States.. It doesn’t help Denmark, but it helps us.”

NATO Secretary General Mark Rutte insisted that the US and Denmark would stick to a deal to hold talks over potentially increasing the US footprint on the Arctic island.

New Iranian supreme leader not seen at funeral procession for father Khamenei, mourners target Trump

Mourners dressed in black poured into Tehran on Monday for the funeral procession of Iran's late Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, with massive crowds calling for President Donald Trump's death and vowing revenge against the United States and Israel.

Khamenei's coffin was carried through the Iranian capital alongside the coffins of family members killed in a Feb. 28 airstrike at the start of the war launched by Israel and the U.S.

Iran's ruling theocracy encouraged the turnout as a show of strength while the regime remains locked in tense negotiations with Washington over an end to the war.

As the funeral truck moved slowly through the capital, mourners waved signs and banners targeting Trump. Some also called for the killing of Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, and an effigy of Trump was seen hanging along the route.

Anthropic Caught Secretly Spying on Users

Anthropic's privacy claims are now "harder to believe."

Anthropic, the self-avowed moral center of the AI industry, has been caught spying on its users.

As Ars Technica reports, a security researcher last week uncovered spyware-like code in the company's Claude Code AI model designed to collect data on Chinese users without detection.

The researcher, known by the pseudonym "Thereallo," found that the code was hidden in the AI's system prompt, allowing it track a user's system timezone and usage of a proxy server in order to suss out if they were connected to specific Chinese AI labs.

Anthropic's explanation for this huge breach in user trust left much to be desired. On X, Anthropic engineer Thariq Shhipa wrote that the tracker was added as an "experiment" in March "to prevent account abuse from unauthorized resellers and protect against distillation," and was supposed to be removed.

How digital price tags are spreading at retailers like Walmart — and sparking ‘surveillance’ fears

The growing use of digital price tags at Walmart and other big US retailers is stirring fresh anxiety that prices on groceries and other basic goods could be subjected to high-tech manipulation — and labor unions are looking to capitalize on the fears.

Walmart said it is rapidly installing the tags — which can raise or lower the prices displayed on their tiny LED screens en masse with the click of a button — in all of its 4,600 US stores by the end of the year. The idea, Walmart says, is to free staffers from the decades-old, time-consuming task of switching out paper tags slotted on shelves.

Changing the paper tags “used to take two days,” a Walmart clerk at a Hurst, Texas store said in a video produced by the mega-retailer last year. “Now, it only takes minutes.”

But the tags are facing growing questions and outright opposition from Democratic politicians who have called for local and federal legislation to clamp down on the technology — as labor unions raise alarms that it could become a tool for price gouging, even as it threatens jobs.

Japan plans homegrown AI model, 10 million AI robots

Japan plans to develop a homegrown artificial intelligence model and have 10 million AI-equipped robots operating in more than a dozen sectors by 2040, the government said.

The country will reportedly invest around $6 billion in the homemade AI model, which will be developed by Noetra, a consortium of firms including SoftBank and Sony.

Countries around the world are seeking to develop sovereign AI models to reduce a potentially dangerous over-reliance on technology from the United States and China.

Media reports said that the government would provide up to one trillion yen ($6.1 billion) over the next five years, depending on the results of the initiative.
