Foreign donors have given as much to U.S. universities in the last four years as they did in the previous 40, according to a new report by the Network Contagion Research Institute shared exclusively with The Free Press. The study shows an explosion in overseas funding for American schools between 2021 and 2024, with nearly $29 billion in foreign money donated during that period.

Top Recipients: Institutions with major Qatar partnerships and research ties—such as Cornell University, Carnegie Mellon University, Texas A&M University, Georgetown University, and Northwestern University—account for large portions of the reported totals

AI-assisted cyberattack hit EU executive in October

European Commission detected an AI assisted cyber campaign in October, first spotted Oct 22 and confirmed in an initial probe on Oct 26.
No evidence so far of a commission-wide staff data breach, EU spokesman said.
Attack hit human resources systems, affecting payslips, with officials withholding further operational details.
Hackers used Chinese AI cybersecurity tool Artex, a tool previously linked to attacks on Japanese firms.

ECB warns AI agents make cyberattacks faster and cheaper; Europe faced wider hacking waves hitting banks, store freezers, and major websites.

Judicial Watch: CIA Refuses to Confirm or Deny Existence of January 6 Records

Judicial Watch announced that, after more than two years, the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), instead of producing records under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) per a court order, now claims it cannot confirm or deny whether it has records concerning the January 6, 2021, events at the U.S. Capitol – a dramatic reversal after the CIA's previously acknowledging that a significant volume of records had been located.

Palantir CEO Suddenly Embraces His "Lifelong Democrat" Roots After Cashing In on Trump Administration Contracts Following Democrat Midterm Victories

n a Wednesday interview with Politico's Playbook, the billionaire tech executive described himself as a "lifelong Democrat" who grew up in a far-left environment, claimed he "knows more about being a progressive than almost anybody on the planet," and insisted that "Palantir — all of our products are essentially progressive."

He reportedly used the word "progressive" eight times and left the door open to supporting a Democrat in 2028, provided the nominee is not a Democratic Socialists of America figure.
