

Prophecy Update

<https://allisrael.com/hezbollah-fires-over-60-rockets-at-israel-as-idf-drills-for-approaching-lebanon-war>

Hezbollah fires over 60 rockets at Israel; IDF holds drills to prepare for approaching Lebanon War

Terror group claims 11 attacks on Sunday, including heavy rocket salvos

The Lebanese terror group Hezbollah fired over 60 rockets at northern Israel on Sunday while Israel Defense Forces announced it held a large logistics drill in preparation for a full-scale confrontation with the terror group, which seems to get ever closer.

Hezbollah claimed responsibility for at least 11 attacks on Sunday, including two barrages of over 30 rockets. The first rocket salvo of some 30 Grad rockets struck near an IDF air control base on Mount Meron, with footage on social media showing the impact of around 10 rockets in open areas near the base.

<https://thenewamerican.com/news/schumer-criticizes-netanyahu-calls-for-new-election/>

Schumer Criticizes Netanyahu, Calls for New Election

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.) spoke on the Senate floor today and called for new elections in Israel, stating, "I believe a new election is the only way to allow for a healthy and open decision-making process about the future of Israel." He condemned Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's handling of the war in Gaza, stating Netanyahu "has been too willing to tolerate the civilian toll in Gaza, which is pushing support for Israel worldwide to historic lows. Israel cannot survive if it becomes a pariah."

Schumer said Israelis have a right to choose their leader, and the United States cannot dictate the outcome of Israeli elections, stating on X, "The U.S. cannot dictate the outcome of an election. That is for the Israeli public to decide. As a democracy, Israel has the right to choose its own leaders. But the important thing is that Israelis are given a choice. There needs to be a fresh debate about the future."

<https://vigilantnews.com/post/poland-quietly-confirms-nato-troops-in-ukraine/>

Poland Quietly Confirms NATO Troops Are Deployed in Ukraine

The Discord leaks revealed last year that 97 NATO special operations troops were in Ukraine as of March 2023.

Polish Foreign Minister Radek Sikorski confirmed in comments on Friday that NATO troops are inside Ukraine but would not name the countries who have personnel on the ground.

“NATO soldiers are already present in Ukraine. And I would like to thank the ambassadors of those countries who have taken that risk,” Sikorski said at a conference commemorating Poland’s 25th year as a NATO member.

“These countries know who they are, but I can’t disclose them. Contrary to other politicians, I will not list those countries,” he added.

The fact that NATO troops are in Ukraine has been an open secret since the Discord leaks revealed last year that as of March 2023, there were 97 NATO special operations soldiers in the country, including troops from the US, the UK, Latvia, and France.

The issue has gotten renewed attention since French President Emmanuel Macron said the deployment of NATO troops to Ukraine shouldn’t be ruled out. His comments prompted several NATO countries to say they weren’t considering sending troops and sparked a backlash from Russia.

In response to Sikorski’s comments, Russian Foreign Minister spokeswoman Maria Zakharova said there was no point in NATO continuing to claim it doesn’t have troops inside Russia.

A leaked recording of a conversation between German military officers that was recently published by Russian media revealed that British soldiers inside Ukraine are helping Ukrainian forces fire Storm Shadow missiles, which have a range of about 150 miles.

The small NATO presence inside Ukraine risks a direct NATO-Russia war, which could quickly turn nuclear. But despite the risk of escalation, more and more NATO countries are openly discussing sending more troops.

<https://americanmilitarynews.com/2024/03/pic-us-military-teaches-race-is-fictional-parents-incapable-of-teaching-children-report/>

US military teaches race is 'fictional,' parents incapable of teaching children

An unclassified document for the U.S. Command and General Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Arkansas, allegedly shows that mandatory training for U.S. military members includes teachings that race is fictional; that racism is engrained in education, economic systems, and current laws; and that parents are incapable of properly teaching their children about racism.

A picture of the alleged training curriculum's key concepts was shared Monday by Libs of TikTok on X, formerly Twitter.

"Mandatory training for military members teaches that America was founded on racism, and parents are too ignorant and dumb to teach their children about it," Libs of TikTok wrote in an accompanying message. "They think parents need to stay out of their kids' education and shouldn't have a say in what they learn."

Libs of TikTok warned that the curriculum teaches that only the government "knows what's best for your child and how to properly educate them."

<https://www.westernjournal.com/west-point-changes-mission-statement-removing-values-duty-honor-country/>

West Point Changes Mission Statement, Removing Values 'Duty, Honor, Country'

In a move sure to worry many that the venerable two-century-old West Point is going woke, Superintendent Lt. Gen. Steve Gilland announced Monday a change in the institution's mission statement.

The phrase "duty, honor, country" is out — exchanged for the more amorphous "Army values."

The United States Military Academy's previous mission statement was: "To educate, train and inspire the Corps of Cadets so that each graduate is a commissioned leader of character committed to the values of Duty, Honor, Country and prepared for a career of professional excellence and service to the nation as an officer in the United States Army."

The new mission statement, according to a news release from the academy, is: "To build, educate, train, and inspire the Corps of Cadets to be commissioned leaders of character committed to the Army Values and ready for a lifetime of professional excellence and service to the Army and Nation."

In a message to "West Point Teammates," Gilland addressed the reason for the change.

"Duty, Honor, Country is foundational to the United States Military Academy's culture and will always remain our motto," he wrote. "It defines who we are as an institution and as graduates of West Point."

"These three hallowed words are the hallmark of the cadet experience and bind the Long Gray Line together across our great history."

However, Gilland wrote, "Our responsibility to produce leaders to fight and win our nation's wars requires us to assess ourselves regularly."

Gilland went on to recount that the academy had engaged in an 18-month review of its purpose and strategy, working with West Point leaders and stakeholders. It then recommended the mission statement change to the Army's top leadership.

<https://www.disclose.tv/id/lol4gouf3j/>

Pentagon's $6 BILLION plan for 1,000 AI piloted ghost fighter jets

Five aerospace companies are bidding for the $6 billion contract to produce new unmanned aircraft for the Air Force. The planes will be AI-piloted and will be able to perform dangerous maneuvers

Pentagon's plan for AI piloted ghost fighter jets: Air Force is backing $6BILLION program for 1,000 robot 'mini fighters' that can fly 30ft above the ground at 600mph

The jets will bolster the current ailing and outdated fleet that leaders say is the smallest and oldest since the Air Force became a separate service in 1947.

The new fleet will be able to perform riskier maneuvers than unmanned aircraft, and will escort and protect crewed planes, carry weapons to attack targets on the ground and in the air and act as scouts.

Five companies are bidding for the contract: Boeing, Lockheed Martin, Northrop Grumman, General Atomics and Anduril Industries, but only the Boeing Ghost Bat has been flown publicly.

The Pentagon will choose two of the companies by summer to start building the jets and hopes to have hundreds completed within five years at an estimated cost of $10 to $20 million per plane.

The drones, known as Collaborative Combat Aircraft (CCA), will be smaller than existing fighters at 20 to 30 feet long. They will be made to deter China and its growing military strength.

The newest jets will travel at just below the speed of sound, carrying missiles and weaponry to fire at enemy aircraft and targets on the ground.

Air Force Secretary Frank Kendall told the Wall Street Journal: 'They offer a lot of things that traditional crewed fighter planes just aren't designed to do.'

The newest models will be a step up from the small drones have become a key feature of modern battlefields in recent years in Ukraine and parts of the Middle East.

Larger drones, like the new fleet, are needed to tackle the vast distances of the western Pacific.

The planes rely on artificial intelligence to fly autonomously and adapt to changing conditions in combat.

One of the main new developers of flying software is Shield AI.

Their technology helped an uncrewed F-16 regularly beat some of the best Air Force pilots in simulated missions, allowing their planes to skim the ground at 600 miles an hour.

Ground controllers could manage 10 of the drones at once or they can be programmed to fly in swarms, overwhelming and confusing the enemy.

The planes should also be cheaper than manned aircraft as they are designed to be expendable, flying one or two missions before they are retired or destroyed, meaning they can be made with cheaper parts.

<https://www.technocracy.news/it-begins-ai-is-being-used-to-deceive-voters-disrupt-elections-worldwide/>

It Begins: AI Is Being Used To Deceive Voters, Disrupt Elections Worldwide

Artificial intelligence is supercharging the threat of election disinformation worldwide, making it easy for anyone with a smartphone and a devious imagination to create fake – but convincing – content aimed at fooling voters.

It marks a quantum leap from a few years ago, when creating phony photos, videos or audio clips required teams of people with time, technical skill and money. Now, using free and low-cost generative artificial intelligence services from companies like Google and OpenAI, anyone can create high-quality “deepfakes” with just a simple text prompt.

A wave of AI deepfakes tied to elections in Europe and Asia has coursed through social media for months, serving as a warning for more than 50 countries heading to the polls this year.

“You don’t need to look far to see some people ... being clearly confused as to whether something is real or not,” said Henry Ajder, a leading expert in generative AI based in Cambridge, England.

The question is no longer whether AI deepfakes could affect elections, but how influential they will be, said Ajder, who runs a consulting firm called Latent Space Advisory.

As the U.S. presidential race heats up, FBI Director Christopher Wray recently warned about the growing threat, saying generative AI makes it easy for “foreign adversaries to engage in malign influence.”

With AI deepfakes, a candidate’s image can be smeared, or softened. Voters can be steered toward or away from candidates — or even to avoid the polls altogether. But perhaps the greatest threat to democracy, experts say, is that a surge of AI deepfakes could erode the public’s trust in what they see and hear.

https://protestia.substack.com/p/god-and-country-the-rise-of-christian?utm\_source=substack&utm\_medium=email

‘God & Country: The Rise Of Christian Nationalism’ Film Ends Theatrical Run With Only $60,464 in Box Office Sales

Rob Reiner’s ‘God & Country: The Rise Of Christian Nationalism’ has concluded its theatrical run and to the surprise of all progressives and no conservatives, it absolutely bombed, bringing in a mere $38,415 over an extended four-day weekend, and $60,464 in the seven days it was in theaters.

The film opened in 85 theaters, averaging $451 a theater over four days, which is incredibly low. Assuming it had at least one showing each day (and likely it had several), it brought in around 112 dollars a day, or ten people a day spread across however many showings.

In comparison, John MacArthur’s The Essential Church made over $412,000 during its run and Greg Locke’s film about deliverance ministers and demons made over $2.5M.

We’ve written before about the film, featuring the who’s who of bad faith liberals, such as Jemar Tisby, David French, Kristin Kobes Du Mez, Phil Vischer, Skye Jethani, William Barber, Russell Moore, and which alleges that politically active conservative Christians (all lumped together under the label “Christian Nationalism”) don’t understand True Christianity and have let politics subsume their faith.

The truth however if you take a look at who is delivering this message, it becomes clear this is a case of DARVO (an acronym for “deny, attack, and reverse victim and offender”).

To a person, the film’s talking heads all display eye-socket logs of theological compromise in service of politics. In this series of articles, we showed how “experts” of “God And Country” are either firmly outside Christianity in theology and practice or deeply compromised on basic Christian ethics.

https://thefederalist.com/2024/03/08/biden-lied-30-times-during-the-state-of-the-union/?utm\_source=rss&utm\_medium=rss&utm\_campaign=biden-lied-30-times-during-the-state-of-the-union

Biden Lied 30 Times During The State Of The Union

President Biden has been known to tell some pretty outrageous lies throughout his political career. So, it came as no surprise when Ol’ Sleepy Joe spewed out more than a few whoppers during his State of the Union address on Thursday.

From foreign policy to the economy, there was almost no subject in which the president didn’t lie to the American people. In case you missed his dumpster fire speech, here’s the definitive list of Biden’s biggest SOTU falsehoods.

<https://www.indiatoday.in/world/story/haiti-cannibal-gang-barbecue-leader-caribbean-us-jimmy-cherizier-haitian-ariel-henry-video-babekyou-2513276-2024-03-11>

A 'cannibal' gang and its 'Barbecue' leader push Haiti into chaos

Haiti has descended into chaos and its Prime Minister has resigned. A gang leader, Jimmy Cherizier, who projects himself as a revolutionary, has become the most powerful person in Haiti. Cherizier is known as 'Barbecue' for burning people alive.

Haiti, a Caribbean country, has plunged into chaos due to gang warfare. The US has airlifted non-essential staff from its embassy and the country has declared a state of emergency. On Tuesday, Prime Minister Ariel Henry, stranded outside the country, resigned.

This comes after gangs attacked airports, police stations and prisons. Thousands of jail inmates have fled too.

Jimmy Cherizier, popular as 'Babekyou' or 'Barbecue', is the leader of the notorious 'G9 and Family' gang and is now the most powerful man in Haiti, reports the New York Post.

It is said that Cherizier began being called 'Barbecue' because of his penchant of burning people alive.

Amid the rise of 'Barbecue', a video has emerged that shows a member of a 'cannibal' gang eating human body parts.

The video on X shows a Haitian man tearing flesh from the leg of a burning corpse and eating it.

Some of the videos uploaded on X have been removed now. There are reports that the videos are two-year old.

The latest round of chaos led by 'Barbecue' is an attempt to overthrow Prime Minister Ariel Henry and intensified after he left for a summit last week. He had gone to Kenya to secure the leadership of a UN-backed international security mission to help police fight armed gangs in Haiti.

The prime minister attempted to fly back but couldn't land there amid gunbattles as government soldiers tried to foil the gang member's bid to take over the international airport.

<https://nypost.com/2024/03/12/us-news/florida-border-agents-on-high-alert-for-haitian-refugees/>

Florida border agents placed on high alert for refugees following breakdown of order in Haiti

Border agents in Miami have been told to prepare for a wave of migration from Haiti following the takeover of the country by bloodthirsty gangs, The Post has learned.

An internal agency email leaked to The Post pointed out it is unlikely Haitians who take to the sea and enter Florida illegally will be repatriated back to their home country, given its instability.

The message also warned that one vessel of migrants landing would overwhelm agency capabilities in the area.

“One landing will cripple the station and our ability to respond to other traffic,” the email to agents read.

Roughly 15,000 people have been internally displaced in recent days due to the gang takeover of the country, according to the UN.

The gangs have wreaked violence and terror through the burning of buildings, lootings, attacks on police stations and government infrastructure resulting in the closure of hospitals, disease and starvation.

“With the breakdown of the government in Haiti repatriating Haitians may not be happening for the foreseeable future,” the email read. “If this is the case, then the Coast Guard may not be stopping Haitian sail freighter[s].”

Border Patrol officials are concerned that if Haitian migrants reach Florida’s shores it will be difficult to contain the groups, transport them in a timely fashion for processing and identify fraudulent families, the email read.

https://www.lifesitenews.com/blogs/macron-leads-celebration-of-constitutional-right-to-abortion-at-unprecedented-ceremony-in-paris/?utm\_source=most\_recent&utm\_campaign=usa

Macron leads ‘celebration’ of constitutional right to abortion at unprecedented ceremony in Paris

The French president glowingly proclaimed at a public signing event the 'guaranteed' right to an abortion is now the law of the land.

For the first time in French history, a public ceremony was organized Friday to solemnize the inscription of a new amendment into the Constitution.

What used to take place in the office of the Minister of Justice, also called the Garde des Sceaux (“Keeper of the Seals”), was turned into a quasi-religious event on the celebrated Place Vendôme in the center of Paris by President Emmanuel Macron.

The reason? The French leader wanted to give special importance to the new article in the Constitution that proclaims the freedom to have an abortion is “guaranteed” for all women within the framework determined by law. Also, he wanted to be seen publicly as the ultimate promoter of this change to the Constitution, not having been able to join the Parliament’s vote last Tuesday by virtue of the “separation of legislative and executive powers.”

A special covered podium was erected in front of the Ministry of Justice and a bevy of officials (ministers, lawmakers, members of the administration), representatives of the world of culture and pro-abortion advocates, Mrs. Brigitte Macron and others appeared with shining faces and wide smiles to celebrate International Women’s Day with the enshrining of abortion rights into France’s fundamental law. Several hundred ordinary citizens, also mostly female, watched the ceremony from farther away, although the Place Vendôme was far from full.

There was an almost religious silence when the Justice Minister Eric Dupond-Moretti (surrounded by Macron; young, self-proclaimed homosexual Prime Minister Gabriel Attal; a radiant Yaël Braun-Pivet, president of the French National Assembly; and several others) turned the 200-year-old press, which is always used for sealing the original constitutional texts. On the front side, the seal bears an image of Marianne, the symbol of the French republic, with other symbols. The flip side bears the words: “In the name of the French people.”

Emmanuel Macron was positively glowing as the text he had just proudly signed was acclaimed and applauded for several minutes, and his first move was to fold into a lengthy embrace a woman who had been specially invited to join the official personalities as the signatory of an appeal published in the left-wing magazine Le Nouvel Observateur on April 5, 1971, when 343 leading figures of French politics, civil society and show business claimed to have undergone a clandestine abortion, clamoring for the killing of unborn children to become legal. They claimed that “1 million women” had abortions in France each year – one of the exaggerated statistics always used to promote abortion – and that they were one of them. They demanded “open access to contraception” and “open abortion.”

<https://www.reuters.com/world/europe/macron-backs-end-life-bill-aims-parliament-debate-may-2024-03-10/>

Macron backs 'end of life' bill, aims for parliament debate in May

President Emmanuel Macron said on Sunday for the first time that he backed new end-of-life legislation that would allow what he called "help to die" and wanted his government to put forward a draft bill to parliament in May.

France's neighbours Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands have adopted laws that allow medically assisted dying in some cases. But France has resisted that step, in part under pressure from the Catholic Church.

The Claeys-Leonetti law on the end of life, adopted in 2016, authorizes deep sedation but only for people whose prognosis is threatened in the short-term.

In an interview with Liberation newspaper, Macon said he did not want to call the new legislation euthanasia or assisted suicide, but rather "help to die".

"It does not, strictly speaking, create a new right nor a freedom, but it traces a path which did not exist until now and which opens the possibility of requesting assistance in dying under certain strict conditions," he said.

<https://www.disclose.tv/id/na62945ud2/>

Canadian law endorsed by Trudeau government could imprison people for life for speech crimes

Introduced late last month, the Online Harms Act, or Bill C-63, would allow judges to imprison adults for life if they advocate for genocide.

A Canadian law that aims to make social media platforms safer is getting flak for what some decry as government overreach.

Introduced late last month, the Online Harms Act, or Bill C-63, would allow judges to imprison adults for life if they advocate for genocide.

The law would also allow a provincial judge to impose house arrest and a fine if there were reasonable grounds to believe a defendant “will commit” an offense – a provision Wall Street Journal columnist Michael Taube likened to the 2002 film, The Minority Report.

Maragaret Atwood, author of The Handmaid’s Tale, has criticized the bill as “Orwellian.”

<https://www.californiafamily.org/2024/03/parents-set-to-publicly-expose-secret-elementary-lgbtq-clubs-in-elk-grove/>

Parents Publicly Expose Secret Elementary LGBTQ Clubs in Elk Grove

Parents at a California elementary school were alarmed in January after discovering a 3rd-grade teacher was allowed to personally invite all the 3rd through 6th-grade classes to a new LGBTQ club he was starting. The “UBU Club” as he called it, was for “boys who crush on boys” and “girls who crush on girls,” but anyone could come, the kids were told. Yet parents weren’t told anything about the club. No notification in the school newsletter and no permission slips were required for attendance, despite one being necessary to belong to the school’s garden club.

Within days of finding out, 30 upset parents crowded into a meeting room with the principal of Elk Grove’s Pleasant Grove Elementary School and a district administrator to get some answers. They were told LGBTQ clubs had already been started in 5 to 10 other elementary schools. They also discovered school officials weren’t sure students needed parent permission to attend an LGBTQ club. But the UBU club was put on hold until the school officials got legal advice. That was on January 29. Tired of waiting for answers, parents took their complaints and questions to the Elk Grove Unified School Board at this week’s school board meeting.

<https://libertysentinel.org/calif-schools-give-taxpayer-cash-to-children-for-far-left-activism/>

Calif. Schools Give Taxpayer Cash to Children for Far-Left Activism

Government schools in California are offering children large sums of taxpayer money to become social-justice warriors through a far-left extremist group that has been accused of anti-Semitism, sparking alarm among critics about how “education” has become cover for indoctrinating students and turning them into revolutionaries.

The explosive scandal, first reported by The Free Press last week, was revealed thanks to contracts showing that Long Beach Unified School District gave $2 million to “Californians for Justice.” The funding was used to offer $1,400 “stipends” to about 100 children in exchange for becoming radical activists. Other districts in the state are also involved.

The organization involved brags online about how it is a “youth-powered organization fighting for racial justice.” In reality, it is a taxpayer-funded and taxpayer-powered outfit that is bilking taxpayers and using it to buy “youth activists” ready to promote an extreme leftwing agenda backed by politicians and their allies.

According to the group’s website, it offers “leadership development opportunities throughout the school year and summer.” The goal, it says, is “to ensure our youth leaders gain the political education and valuable organizing skills they need to lead social justice movements.”

On its Instagram page, it promotes everything from transgenderism and racial hate to removing Jews from the Holy Land. In a recent video posted by the organization, a student is asked why others should join “Californians for Justice.” The response is telling: “You get paid good.” Apparently proper grammar is not needed for “social justice leadership.”

A spokesman for the Long Beach school district south of Los Angeles defended the cash for activism, describing it as an “internship” that helps ensure “equitable participation in CFJ programs, embracing diverse perspectives in education.” But clearly, diverse perspectives — in fact, any non-radical leftist ones — are not welcome.

The “trainings” uncovered by The Free Press urge the children on the payroll to call out their teachers on subjects including “implicit bias” and “racism.” They are also taught to whine about “student voice.” Ultimately, it is part of a new paradigm in education where teachers are no longer educators in the traditional sense, but fellow revolutionaries.

<https://www.disclose.tv/id/sfanbd4pjk/>

Doctors admit link between transgender hormone therapy and cancer in leaked emails

WPATH files show patients did not always understand the consequences of gender reassignment

Doctors on a leading transgender healthcare body have admitted that patients have developed cancer owing to the effects of hormone treatment...