Videos linked to Minneapolis shooting suspect show antisemitic, anti-Israel messages

Alleged shooter posted videos showing weapons with the slogans 'burn Israel,' '6 million wasn't enough' and references to 2018 Tree of Life shooter, ADL says

The suspect in Wednesday's mass shooting at a Catholic school in Minneapolis, Minnesota, posted videos that included antisemitic and anti-Israel messages, according to the Anti-Defamation League.

Authorities have identified the suspect, who died by suicide at the scene, as Robin Westman, 23.

Two children, aged 8 and 10, were killed and 17 others were wounded when the attacker opened fire on students attending Mass at the Catholic school, authorities said.

The assailant fired dozens of rounds through the church windows at students sitting in church pews and then died by suicide, officials said.

Teenage shooter of Colombian presidential hopeful sentenced to seven years
Fifteen-year-old sentenced for attempted murder and illegal possession of weapons after shooting Miguel Uribe in June.

A 15-year-old shooter who attacked Colombian presidential candidate Miguel Uribe has been sentenced to seven years in juvenile detention. The right-wing politician was shot in the head during a campaign event in June and died on August 11 after multiple surgeries.

The teen was charged with attempted murder rather than homicide due to legal restrictions involving minors. Videos of the June attack show Uribe being shot three times before collapsing.

Five other adults have been arrested and charged with aggravated homicide related to the incident, but the motive behind the attack remains unclear.

Trump Calls For RICO Charges Against Soros Over Protest Support

President Donald Trump is calling for billionaire George Soros and his son Alex to face racketeering charges, accusing their network of funding protests across the United States.

President Donald Trump escalated his attacks on George Soros on Wednesday, urging federal prosecutors to bring racketeering charges against the billionaire philanthropist and his son Alex. In a sharply worded post on Truth Social, Trump accused Soros of supporting organized efforts to fuel violent protests nationwide. “George Soros, and his wonderful radical left son, should be charged with RICO because of their support of violent protests, and much more, all throughout the United States of America,” Trump wrote. “We’re not going to allow these lunatics to rip apart America any more, never giving it so much as a chance to ‘BREATHE,’ and be FREE. Soros, and his group of psychopaths, have caused great damage to our country! That includes his crazy West Coast friends. Be careful, we’re watching you! Thank you for your attention to this matter!”

By invoking the federal RICO statute, typically used to prosecute organized crime, Trump signaled a harder line against what he describes as an orchestrated campaign to destabilize the country. The same language — “sowing discord in America” — was previously used by Democrats to advance Russian collusion allegations against Trump’s 2016 campaign, which he and his allies continue to call discredited.

Republicans have long made Soros a political target, citing his extensive financial support of Democratic candidates and progressive prosecutors who favor criminal justice reform. Soros and his family foundation have dismissed such attacks as baseless conspiracy theories, often pointing to accusations of antisemitism behind the criticism.

The latest demand comes as Trump intensifies his law-and-order campaign messaging ahead of the 2026 midterms, casting Democrats as sympathetic to unrest and presenting himself as the only leader capable of restoring public safety. Soros, 94, has largely stepped away from day-to-day oversight of his Open Society Foundations, which he transferred to his son Alex Soros. The foundation has pledged to continue financing global democracy and human rights initiatives despite heightened criticism from Trump and Republican leaders.

Gates Foundation Cuts Ties With Arabella Advisors' Dark Money Network

The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation has ended its support for Arabella-managed funds, signaling a major shift away from a powerful Democratic-aligned financing hub.

The Gates Foundation has quietly severed its financial relationship with Arabella Advisors, a leading manager of left-leaning “dark money” funds that channel large sums into Democratic-aligned causes, The New York Times reported.

An internal June 24 announcement, obtained by the Times, revealed that the foundation would no longer fund nonprofit vehicles administered by Arabella. While the memo avoided direct mention of politics, foundation officials said they sought to strengthen ties with program partners more closely aligned to their mission.

“Teams are increasingly working directly with programmatic partners — organizations that are deeply embedded in the communities we serve and closely aligned with our mission,” the message stated, according to the Times. “As we look ahead, this is a chance to build deeper, more durable relationships with those partners — and to reinforce the kind of legacy we want to leave behind.”

Founded in 2005 by Eric Kessler, a Clinton administration veteran and former staffer with the National Democratic Institute and the League of Conservation Voters (LCV), Arabella has become one of the most prominent financial networks on the left. The LCV itself has opposed Trump administration policies and backed Democratic candidates through its related political arm. In 2022, Arabella-directed nonprofits poured more than $4 million into voter engagement groups in battleground states.

Kentucky Judge shot dead in courthouse 'ran depraved sex ring', accuser claims

A woman has accused the Kentucky judge shot dead in his chambers of running a sex ring from his office, coercing girls into 'wild sex parties' in exchange for keeping them out of jail.

District Judge Kevin Mullins, 54, was killed while in his chambers at Letcher County Circuit Court in September of 2024, allegedly at the hands Letcher County Sheriff Shawn M. 'Mickey' Stines - his close friend.

Since the fatal shooting, disturbing claims have emerged about Mullins - including one witness who told police he ran his chambers 'like a brothel' and was seen having sex with a 'girl' inside the office in Whitesburg, around 140 miles southeast of Lexington.

Kansas State University 'Civil Rights' Administrator Is Part of Secret Marxist Group That Says It Has 'No Sympathy' for Dead Jews

At a group meeting, the investigator, Derron Borders, lamented that the assassination of two Israeli embassy staffers would not spark a broader 'movement'

An investigator in Kansas State University's civil rights office, which claims to foster an "environment free from discrimination, harassment, and retaliation," is part of a secretive Marxist book club that calls for the "total destruction" of Israel, hails the terrorist group Hamas, and defends the murders of Israeli civilians.

Derron Borders, who joined the university's civil rights and Title IX office in May 2024, is a member of the Kansas Socialist Book Club, an anti-colonial Marxist group based in Manhattan, Kansas, the Washington Free Beacon has found.

The organization, formed in 2022, has embraced extremist views on Israel over the Jewish state's response to the Oct. 7 attacks from Hamas. In a manifesto last year, the Kansas Socialist Book Club called for the "complete and total destruction" of Israel and expressed "unwavering support" for Hamas.

Rep. Rashida Tlaib and Muslim Terrorist Traded for Oct 7 Hostages to Appear at Same Event

We allowed a Muslim terrorist sprung by Hamas into America.

Two Palestinian terrorists are set to speak at the Detroit People's Conference for Palestine at the end of August, including a Tanzim operative who was released in February in return for hostages held by Hamas and a former Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP) official.

Shaheen was released on February 1 along with hundreds of other terrorists as part of a deal in exchange for live and deceased hostages captured by Gazan forces during the October 7 massacre, according to Israeli Justice Ministry and Palestinian Prisoner's Society (PPS) announcements.

Experts predict a civil war in the UK; there is no political solution

In a recent interview, Richard Kemp, an expert on security, intelligence, counter-terrorism and defence, issued a stark warning:

“The more it develops – and it is going to develop more and more – the more unrest we’re going to see ... I would go as far as to predict not just civil unrest but civil war in the UK, in the coming years ... I would hate to be right on this, but I believe I know that there is no political solution.”

At MCC Feszt in Hungary, Connor Tomlinson sat down with former British Army Colonel Richard Kemp to ask what the main threats facing the West from within are, why our politicians appear incapable of or unwilling to address them and whether ignoring problems caused by immigration and Islam will bring Britain to the brink of civil war.

Kemp issued a stark warning that the United Kingdom is on a trajectory towards civil war due to the failure of political leaders to address a growing threat from an alliance between far-left activists and Islamist extremists. He stated that this alliance, which he believes is fostered and funded by hostile foreign powers like Russia, China and Iran, poses a significant danger to the nation’s cohesion, culture and political existence.

Kemp criticised UK politicians for being short-sighted and risk-averse, operating with a “horizon is four years” mentality focused on re-election rather than taking the decisive action needed to prevent societal collapse.

He emphasised that while he does not encourage violence, he believes the public may ultimately feel they have “no option” but to take matters into their own hands, leading to widespread unrest and potentially full-scale civil war if the current situation continues.

AI Experts No Longer Saving for Retirement Because They Assume AI Will Kill Us All by Then

"I just don't expect the world to be around."

The meteoric rise of artificial intelligence has instilled an existential fear in "AI doomers," a subset of people who believe the tech will cause humans to lose their jobs, fall prey to a dominating species of rogue superintelligent AIs, and even eventually get wiped out altogether.

And, as The Atlantic reports, some are taking that pervasive fear to striking extremes in their daily lives. Machine Intelligence Research Institute researcher Nate Soares, for instance, told the magazine that he's even given up saving for his retirement, based on the assumption that AI has already guaranteed the final nail in humanity's coffin.

"I just don't expect the world to be around," he said.

And Center for AI Safety director Dan Hendrycks told the magazine that he's also expecting humanity to no longer be around by his retirement.

Their belief is part of a movement that argues we're mere years away from an AI that evades our grasp and turns against us, a kind of dystopian fate that's yanked straight out of the pages of a harrowing sci-fi novel.

But it's not looking like pure fiction anymore. Numerous experts have warned that we aren't sufficiently preparing for such an eventuality, dooming us to be subjugated — or worse — by a superintelligent AI.

SCIENTIST WARNS THAT NEW SYNTHETIC LIFEFORM COULD SPELL DOOM FOR HUMANKIND

"IF THIS IS ACHIEVED AND PANDORA'S BOX OPENS IT COULD POSE EXTRAORDINARY RISKS."

It's a technology that doesn't even exist yet, but its effects could be so drastically destructive that scientists in the field are calling for it to be banned now, before it's too late.

We're talking, of course, about "mirror life" — synthetic organisms that quite literally turn natural biology on its head.

"We should choose not to build mirror life and pass laws to ensure nobody can," John Glass, a synthetic biologist who helped create the first living cell with a synthetic genome, wrote in a speculative yet terrifying piece for the Financial Times. "The question is not whether we are able to prevent this threat — it is whether we will act while we still can."

Mirror lifeforms contain DNA structures that are the mirror image to all known organisms. In all life on Earth, the DNA double helix is right-handed, meaning its strands, a sugar-phosphate backbone, twist to the right. (If you make a thumbs-up with your right hand, the vertical axis would be aligned with your thumb, while your fingers represent the curl of the spiral.) The opposite is the case for proteins, the building blocks of cells, which are left-handed.

This so-called homochirality is true for all known lifeforms. So what happens when humans engineer a synthetic organism where its DNA twists to the left, while its proteins twist to the right?

The scary thing is that we can't say for sure — but many biologists fear the worst. In December, a group of leading figures in the field, including two Nobel laureates, published a massive technical report warning that the consequences of mirror life "could be globally disastrous," possibly even wiping out all life if the new organisms prove pathogenic to existing life, like us humans.

<https://endtimeheadlines.org/2025/08/palantir-ceo-peter-thiel-to-lead-4-part-series-on-the-antichrist/>

A California nonprofit is set to host an off-the-record lecture series featuring billionaire investor Peter Thiel on the biblical figure of the Antichrist.

Thiel, 57, will offer his thoughts on “how his Christian faith informs his understanding of the world,” including the areas of theology, history, literature and “politics of the Antichrist” as part of a four-part lecture series at The Commonwealth Club in San Francisco, according to a flyer for the event.

Scheduled for Sept. 15, Sept. 22, Sept. 29 and Oct. 6, Thiel’s lecture will explore the theological and technological dimensions of the Antichrist, drawing upon religious thinkers such as French philosopher René Girard, who Thiel studied under at Stanford University, Francis Bacon, Jonathan Swift, Carl Schmitt and John Henry Newman.

Each lecture — which will not be transcribed or shared with the public — is designed to form a “cohesive series,” and admission is only offered to the entire lecture series, rather than individual dates.

The event will also feature a moderated Q&A with Peter Robinson, host of Stanford’s Hoover Institution podcast “Uncommon Knowledge,” and an audience Q&A for attendees to have “a chance to engage directly with Thiel.”

The Acts 17 Collective, a nonprofit dedicated to “Acknowledging Christ in Technology and Society,” is the organizer behind the event.

High-THC Cannabis Linked to Psychosis and Addiction

Summary: A systematic review of nearly 100 studies found that high-THC cannabis products are linked to negative mental health outcomes, particularly psychosis, schizophrenia, and cannabis use disorder. While some therapeutic research hinted at benefits for anxiety and depression, results were inconsistent and often showed potential harm.

The evidence suggests higher THC concentrations carry greater risks, reinforcing concerns about high-potency cannabis use. Researchers emphasize that stronger, better-designed studies are essential to give clearer guidance to patients and healthcare providers.

Key Facts

Psychosis Risk: High-THC cannabis is strongly associated with psychosis, schizophrenia, and cannabis use disorder.

Mixed Findings: Some studies suggest potential therapeutic benefit for anxiety and depression, but many show harm.

Evidence Gap: Current research lacks definitive answers, highlighting the need for improved study design.
