Jesus is uniquely qualified to execute the will of God through His _____.

The first time the Lion of Judah is mentioned is in Genesis 49 when Jacob is blessing his sons and was understood by ancient Israel to be a promise by God for the _____. The second reference is Root of David. David was the son of a man named Jesse. We can find a promise of God to ancient Israel of a Messiah both in Isaiah and _____.

The scroll is the final and divine announcement of the _____ of all history. It tells of how things will ultimately end for all people, judgment for the world and the final reward for the people of God.

Jesus is uniquely qualified to execute the will of God through His _____.

Jesus understands what we have gone through, what we are going through now and what we will go through in the future and because of His great love for us, He does not leave us in the _____.

There is no _____ without the Love of God. There is no _____ without the love of God. There is no _____ with the final consummation without the love of God and there is no hope, joy, or peace without the love, the first love of the triune God.

Jesus is uniquely qualified to execute the will of God through His _____ on the cross.

The cross is the _____ of history and the final battle of Armageddon is the culmination of a victory already won! In actuality, Armageddon is Satan's and the evil powers of the world's final act of defiance more than the final victory of Christ!

_____ God with us. It's been his plan all along. From the moment of creation when God walked through the garden with Adam and Eve, to Jesus walking among His People. God loved us so much that He made a way for Him to be with us.
