A Healthy Church

"I feel like a monster," Gabriel Marshall said to his dad.

Eight-year-old Gabriel had recently undergone surgery to remove a tumor from his brain. He now bore a conspicuous scar on the side of his head. His dad, Josh, had an idea: he got a tattoo on the side of his head that was in the exact shape of Gabriel's scar.

"If people want to stare at you," he told Gabriel, "Then they can stare at both of us."

A picture of the two sporting their scars eventually won first place in a Father's Day photo competition run by St. Baldrick's Foundation, "an organization dedicated to fighting childhood cancer."

You are familiar with the expression, "Like father, like son." It means that the son resembles his father in looks, manners, abilities, and so on. In the previous story, we should probably say, "Like son, like father," because Josh, the father, got a tattoo to resemble the scar on his son Gabriel's head.

As we read Paul's First Letter to Timothy, we shall see that Paul constantly encourages Timothy in his walk with the Lord and in his service to the Lord. In many ways, Paul encourages Timothy to do what he (Paul) would do. It really is a case of "like father, like son." So much so, that Paul calls Timothy "my true child in the faith" (1:2a).

The adjective "true," used only four times in the New Testament, means "being honest and straightforward in attitude and speech." Timothy grew in service to Paul, the gospel, the Lord, and his people. In other words, Timothy was a faithful assistant who could be trusted by Paul with overseeing difficult church situations.

You want to live and serve in a healthy church, right? Then emulate Timothy. Grow in faithful service and "true" devotion.
