Weekly Study: Summer in the Psalms- Come and Hear

Overview

Psalms 66 reminds us that every believer carries a testimony of what God has done. The psalmist invites others to come and hear, not to admire his knowledge or accomplishments, but to hear what God has done for his soul. When God has saved, delivered, restored, or carried us, we have something worth sharing. Our testimony is not meant to stay silent. It is meant to encourage others, point them to Jesus, and remind them that He still changes lives.

Scripture

Psalms 66: 16-20 | Psalms 107:2 | John 4:29 | Revelation 12:11

Key Points

You Have Something to Say

- If God has done anything in your life, you have a story worth sharing.
- Your testimony is powerful because no one can erase what God has done in you.
- You may not know every Scripture, but if Jesus saved you, kept you, or restored you, you have something to say.

Somebody Needs to Hear It

- Your story is connected to someone who needs hope, encouragement, or a reminder that God still moves.
- Your story and invitation to know God may be the doorway God uses to change someone's life.

When the Storm Comes, I Stand on the Rock

- We invite people because Jesus still saves, delivers, restores, forgives, and transforms lives.
- What Jesus did for you, He can do for someone else.
- Your testimony points people to the Savior who can change their future.

Reflection

What has God done for you that you can share with someone else?

Who is the person God may be prompting you to invite or encourage?

How has Jesus changed your life in a way that could give hope to someone else?

Prayer

Lord, thank You for all You have done for my soul. Give me courage to share my story and invite others to experience Your goodness. Show me the people who need encouragement, hope, and the message of Jesus. Use my testimony to point others to You. Amen.
