THOUGHTS AND REFLECTIONS:

I remember getting my very first credit card application in the mail at 15 years old. I told my dad that I thought I should get this because everyone has one. His response was, "They are not going to give you a credit card. You have to have a steady job!" I said, "Well! I steadily borrow money from you!"

I have to admit, I really think they would have found a way for me to get that credit card even without a job, if I really wanted it. There is no shortage of people ready to loan you money. We live in a world that teaches us that if you can not afford it, you can put it on layaway or a credit card and just make payments on it. We would be appalled to really see the amounts that we pay for these things after interest and other fees.

Then we wonder why we can not afford to live and how we ended up enslaved to all of these creditors in exchange for a bunch of stuff that is outdated and needing replaced before we get it paid for. It is an endless, annoying cycle that will be Biblically addressed in our Financial Peace University class. Are you ready for freedom?
