Title: I Don't Want To But I Will
Theme: God gives each of us rights and responsibilities toward others.

1. Children lack experience and wisdom.
2. Children are made in the image of God, but have been stained by sin and naturally reject God.
3. Children need instruction in righteousness so they might know and do God's will.
4. Good relationships balance rights and responsibilities. Parents have the right to be obeyed. Children have the responsibility to obey. Children have the right to be cared for physically, spiritually, and emotionally. Parents have the responsibility to provide without provoking their children.
5. Rights without responsibilities lead to chaos, abuse, and tyranny.
