SACRED SEXUALITY | Discussion Guide

Why has homosexuality become such a debated issue among Christians when Scripture speaks so clearly about sexual sin? Where else have we let culture redefine something that God has already defined?

Why are many Christians tempted to reinterpret Scripture when it conflicts with someone's desires, identity, or personal story? What does reveal about how we sometimes form our theology?

How has our culture trained people to see homosexual desire as an identity rather than a temptation to be submitted to Christ? What does this have the potential to lead?

What is the difference between loving someone who claims a homosexual identity and affirming that identity as good? Where do you draw the line between loving and encouraging? (Would you attend a same-sex wedding?)

How should we minister to those who identify as gay? How might you be able to form a relationship with them and how would you share with them the hope you have in Jesus?
