

SACRED Sexuality

A Good Gift

Genesis 1:27-28; 2:18-25

Tim Wilmetti
May 3rd, 2026

Big Idea: Sex is a _____ gift with the potential for _____ or _____.

God's Good Design

- Sex is meant for _____, not
_____.
- Sex is _____ in the _____ of life.
- Sex is meant for _____ and _____
in one another.

Avoiding Extremes

- We make sex _____ instead of
_____.
- We make sex _____ instead of
_____.

SACRED Sexuality

A Good Gift

Genesis 1:27-28; 2:18-25

Tim Wilmetti
May 3rd, 2026

Big Idea: Sex is a _____ gift with the potential
for _____ or _____.

God's Good Design

- Sex is meant for _____, not
_____.
- Sex is _____ in the _____ of life.
- Sex is meant for _____ and _____
in one another.

Avoiding Extremes

- We make sex _____ instead of
_____.
- We make sex _____ instead of
_____.

SACRED SEXUALITY | Discussion Guide

How does Genesis 1:27–28 and 2:18–25 shape the way we understand sex as part of God’s larger design for gender, marriage, family, and human flourishing?

Why is it important to say that sex is good, sacred, and created by God before talking about the ways sin distorts it?

What does it mean that sex is meant for “covenant, not consumption,” and how does that challenge the way our culture often talks about sex?

Where are you most tempted to drift toward one of the two extremes: making sex casual instead of sacred, or making sex shameful instead of good?

How does the gospel speak to both sexual sin and sexual shame, and what would it look like to bring your sexuality more fully under the lordship of Christ?

WANT TO DISCUSS THIS MESSAGE WITH OTHERS?
Join a Life Group – pataskalagrace.org/life-groups

SACRED SEXUALITY | Discussion Guide

How does Genesis 1:27–28 and 2:18–25 shape the way we understand sex as part of God’s larger design for gender, marriage, family, and human flourishing?

Why is it important to say that sex is good, sacred, and created by God before talking about the ways sin distorts it?

What does it mean that sex is meant for “covenant, not consumption,” and how does that challenge the way our culture often talks about sex?

Where are you most tempted to drift toward one of the two extremes: making sex casual instead of sacred, or making sex shameful instead of good?

How does the gospel speak to both sexual sin and sexual shame, and what would it look like to bring your sexuality more fully under the lordship of Christ?

WANT TO DISCUSS THIS MESSAGE WITH OTHERS?
Join a Life Group – pataskalagrace.org/life-groups