

An Uncommon Love

Matthew 5:43-48
August 20th, 2023

Christians are recognized by their _____ and _____ love.

They _____ for their _____.

Their love is an _____, not an _____.

Their love _____ to the _____ of God.

An Uncommon Love

Matthew 5:43-48
August 20th, 2023

Christians are recognized by their _____ and _____ love.

They _____ for their _____.

Their love is an _____, not an _____.

Their love _____ to the _____ of God.

Reflection Questions

Is there anything in the Bible that suggests we should hate our enemies? If so, where? If not, what would lead someone to believe this?

What sort of enemies do you have in life? Who do you really struggle to love?

How does God demonstrate His love for even those who have rejected Him? How can we love those who hate us?

Even non-Christians love those who love them. Why does God call us to an even greater scope of love?

Reflection Questions

Is there anything in the Bible that suggests we should hate our enemies? If so, where? If not, what would lead someone to believe this?

What sort of enemies do you have in life? Who do you really struggle to love?

How does God demonstrate His love for even those who have rejected Him? How can we love those who hate us?

Even non-Christians love those who love them. Why does God call us to an even greater scope of love?